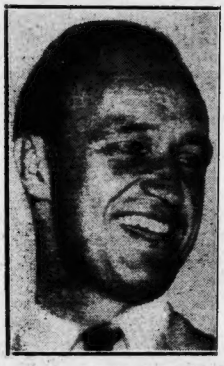
James Roosevelt Says:



CAPT. JAMES ROOSEVELT

'UNITED STATES ALREADY IN WAR'

CAIRO, Egypt, May 9 (AP)—Capt. James Roosevelt, here as an observer for the U. S. Marine Corps, expressed the opinion today that the United States "except for sending troops, already is in the war."

The President's eldest son made the statement in response to a question whether he thought the United States could best aid Britain by entering the war or staying out of it longer.

He arrived here last night from an overnight stay in Basra, Iraq. Of the eight-day-old hostilities between British troops and Iraq forces in that Middle East state, he said the trouble was "deep-seated and is not likely to be cleaned up within a few days."

Captain Roosevelt added, however, that in Iraq "the British seem to have the situation well in hand."

Roosevelt, who joined with more than 20 other American military and naval observers with the British in the Middle East, said he brought a letter from the President to King Farouk of Egypt.

Captain Roosevelt, who caught his first glimpse of war in the Middle East as shots echoed in the streets of Basra during his stay there, said last night in an interview that German airmen were reported to be flying American-made planes as part of the Iraq air force in the fight against Britain.

He did not elaborate but said the fighting in Iraq was not serious, being confined for the most part to local resistance to the British.

He said he believed the United States could best help Britain now by taking action to relieve her in the Far East and in "taking full responsibility for getting supplies across."

400 RAF BOMBERS BLAST GERMANY

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, MAY 9, 1941

400 PLANES RAID GERMANY

LONDON, May 9 (AP-)—The largest RAF bombing armada ever assembled for a single night's raid dumped "tens of thousands" of incendiaries and "hundreds of tons" of high explosives on Hamburg and Bremen, the British announced today.

The air ministry disclosed that United States-made Havocs (Douglas) planes participated in the night's patral operations against German airdromes in northern France and Belgium. One Havoc straddled bombs on a flarepath which was guiding homing Nazi raiders. Another night fighter shot down a German plane taking off from one of the airdromes.

Although the figure on the number of raiding planes was withheld British sources speculated that the Air Ministry's superlative reference meant that at least 300 to 400 planes were used.

The fiery blasting assault on the two centers of the Reich's naval construction and martime industry was but part of the RAF's general sweep, which included an attack on Berlin and Emden, according to the air ministry, as well as other targets in northwestern Germany, coastal shipping and the U-boat base at St. Nazaire, France.

These were called "subsidiary attacks."

"The Germans, acknowledging assault by "strong British forces," said the raiders by-passed Berlin and reached Posen, in German-occupied Poland. The RAF thus crossed Germany. In striking into the Posen area, the long-range British bombers flew at least 550 miles to reach their destination, or 1000 miles round-trip.

(The Germans admitted that unusually strong RAF units attacked Hamburg and Bremen as well as other targets in northwestern Germany, but said strong defenses destroyed the effectiveness of the attacks and that five British raiders were downed.)

MANY FIRES RAGING

This assault was taken by observers as a reflection of the growing strength of Britain's air might, augmented by an increased flow of bombing craft from the United States.

The air ministry news service gave this account:

"More aircraft of the bomber command than ever before on a single night with incendiaries to be counted in the tens of thousands and high explosives in hundreds of tons covered Hamburg and Bremen with fires and smoke last night.

"Buildings were rent and smashed and Germany's submarine and shipbuilding yards were

'Blitzkrieging' U. S. Into War As Time-Tabled by Sen. Nye

Here is how Sen. Nye of North Dakota says the American people are being "blitzkrieged into the war:"

FIRST—Repeal of the arms embargo;

THEN—The giving of 50 U. S. destroyers to Britain;

THEN—"Peace-time" conscription;

THEN—The Lease-Lend Act;

THEN—"Underwriting" the war to the extent of $7,000,000,000;

THEN—The demand for convoys;

AND NOW—The demand for "all-out" U. S. Navy participation in the battle of the Atlantic.

BRITISH NAME BOSTON WAR SUPPLY PORT

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—At least two New England ports—Portland, Me, and Boston—have been designated by the British and Canadian shiping ministries as transshipment ports for war materials moving to Great Britain.

Rep. Oliver(R.) of Maine said he had learned Ortland was officially designated by the British and Canadian officials and that Boston and NewYork also were on their lists.

The designation, he explained, makes those centers for transatlantic shipmens. Shipping officials of Canada and England will direct what supplies are to move through the various pts designated.

Oliver adds that he had been assured maximm use of Portland facilities will be made by the British and Cadians in efforts to increase the speed of delivery of American supies to the British.

"They will use the port for all they can hale," Oliver stated.

BRITISH SINK NAZI RAIDER IN INDIAN OCEAN; SEIZE 53

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—A German raider, believed to have been the 21,131-ton transatlantic liner Hansa, has been sunk in the Indian Ocean by a British warship, the admiralty announced today.

The announcement said the 10,000-ton British cruiser Cornwall rescued 27 British merchant seamen from the raider and seized 53 of the raider's German crew.

Authoritative London quarters estimated the vessel carried 300 crewmen and said she probably was armed with six 5.9 guns, torpedo tubes and was equipped for minelaying. Her speed was 19 knots.

The Hansa, well known to the transatlantic trade, created a furor in New York harbor in August, 1937, when an outbreak of typhoid was found among her crew after her 1000 passengers had debarked and scattered to their homes.

(On Jan. 8, 1939, Chinese pirates fired on a ship identified as the Hansa within a few miles of Shanghai, but the ship put on full steam and escaped.)

The text of the admiralty's communique today said:

"A German armed merchant cruiser acting as a commerce raider in the Indian Ocean has been intercepted and sunk by HMS Cornwall (Capt. P. C. W. Manwaring, R. N.

"Twenty-seven British merchant seamen who were held on board the raider as prisoners have been rescued. Fifty-three of the German crew of the raider survived and are prisoners of war.

"HMS Cornwall sustained superficial damage but her fighting efficiency was in no way impaired."

WALSH JOINS TOBEY IN FIGHT AGAINST CONVOY RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON, May 9 (INS)—Sen. Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, today threw his support to the Tobey anti-convoy resolution. Walsh declared that in fairness to the country the Congress should be permitted to pass on the use of convoys.

He said that he cannot "conceive of any opposition to Congress debating the convoy issue" in view of the President's statement that convoys mean shooting, and shooting means war.

Renewed cabinet emphasis on safe delivery of British aid supplies "right now" furthered belief a showdown was near.

Sec. of Agriculture Wickard said last night that if the United States did not intend to see that England "gets our help, let's tell her so."

Picturing British needs as "terribly urgent," Wickard told a farmers conference at Charlotte, N. C., that "it is a cruel and bitter mockery to let the English people believe we are going to make our help effective if we have only half-way measures in mind."

Meantime belief grew in the capital that Pres. Roosevelt will order convoys without consulting Congress because of delay involved in legislation.

F. D. POWER DEBATED

Members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which first reported the historic lease-lend bill, revealed a belief on the part of most members that the President has authority to order the Navy to escort British merchant ships without seeking specific legislation.

Although Sen. George (D.) of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has said Mr. Roosevelt would first consult Congress on the question of convoys, many Administration members disagree.

Members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee were asked (1) does the President have power to order convoys?; (2) if he thinks they are necessary, will he ask permission of Congress to order them?"

Rep. Bloom (D.) of New York, chairman of the committee, said: "As commander-in-chief of the

Lethal Cocktails Kill Doctor's Chauffeur

Details of a lethal cocktail party were revealed today in the death of John O'Keefe, 32, chauffeur for Dr. M. N. Smith Peterson, prominent Beacon st., Back Bay, physician.

O'Keefe, who lives in Brayton rd., Brighton, died in Massachusetts General Hospital early today from the effects of a cleansing fluid in a cocktail, Medical Examiner William J. Brickley told the police.

The hospital listed his death as caused by "ingestion of poison."

At the O'Keefe home, Mrs. Annie O'Keefe, the victim's aged mother, protested that she knew nothing of a death cocktail party or of poisoning. She said her son returned home from work last Saturday, complaining that he felt ill.

SCENE OF PARTY PROBED

O'Keefe did not leave the house that evening, the mother said. When he became violently ill Sunday morning a neighbor drove him to the hospital.

Mrs. O'Keefe and a sister-in-law who was at the home said O'Keefe had suffered from stomach ulcers for years.

The medical examiner, however, asked the police to investigate the death on the basis that he had information that O'Keefe took part in a cocktail party at which cleansing fluid was introduced in one of the cocktails which O'Keefe drank.

He asked the police to find out where the party had been held and who was present.

O'Keefe's wife, Ada, was not at home when the elderly woman was informed of police suspicions on her son's death. Their three children, Peter, 8; John, 7, and Constance, 6, had been sent to the home of a relative in Cambridge.

BORN IN EIRE

O'Keefe was born in Middleton County Cork, Ireland, the son of the late Dennis P. O'Keefe and Mrs. Annie O'Keefe. He came to this country when a child and had been in the employ of the Back Bay physician for the past 15 or 16 years.

He has a brother, Jeremiah William O'Keefe, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Marie Shelton, living on Hampshire st., Cambridge, and another sister, Mrs. Constance Severse on Line st., Cambridge.

According to Brickley, every effort was made to save O'Keefe's life at the hospital but that the man had died after days of intense suffering.

Navy Yard Annex Strike Is Ordered

Union workmen employed on the $30,000,000 project at the Navy Yard Annex and drydock in South Boston have been ordered on strike Monday, it was revealed today.

The strike has been called "in protest against continued employment of WPA labor and civil service employes on new construction work," official records of the Building and Construction Trades Council of the Metropolitan district disclosed.

Inolved are 300 laborers, 300 carpenters and 325 other men affiliated with unions as ironworkers, engineers, plumbers, steamfitters, roofers, chauffeurs, electricians and bricklayers. Their walkout will affect hundreds of other employes whose work will be halted as a result.

The strike action follows negotiations begun 15 days ago when the Trades Council notified government officials and the agencies involved of the complaints of the unions, seeking a definite statement regarding labor policy to be followed in the construction of buildings at the site.

"This, in our opinion constitutes the proper cooling-off period," says the report of E. A. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the council.

"In the length of time that has elapsed since our original notice, no constructive effort or proposal has been made to adjust the differences that exist, therefore we have no other recourse than to stop work on the operations where the complaints arise."

The settlement that is being asked for by the building and construction trade unions, according to the Johnson report, is that on all new construction work union men will be employed from the beginning to the finish of the operation.

This labor, the report specifies,

DEATH NEAR LEUKEMIA GIRL, MOTHER IS TOLD

A grief-stricken Allston mother resigned herself to solitary grief today as doctors at the Boston Floating Hospital informed her that there was "no hope" to save her only child from death from leukemia, rare blood disease.

The child, Mary Jane Wolf, 8 years old, of Kelton st., became ill only two weeks ago; for a week she was at home, then she was taken to the hospital.

Today doctors told Mrs. Joseph Wolf, youthful and slender mother of the child, that death was inevitable. Blood transfusions, they said, would prolong her life only a short while at most.

The little girl's father is an electrician's mate aboard the U. S. S. Eberle, and does not know of the child's hopeless plight.

Still cheerful and gay at the hospital, Mary Jane does not know herself the seriousness of the disease, described briefly as a malady in which the white corpuscles in the blood multiply so rapidly they destroy the life-giving red ones.

Alone at her home, Mrs. Wolf was attempting to get in touch with her husband.

She communicated with the Navy Department, whose officials agreed to send word to Wolf. The Eberle, the Navy Department said, was "presumably at sea."

N. Y. Just Can't Get Rid of This Family

MAMARONECK, N. Y., May 9 (INS)—The State of New York spent thousands of dlolars, and for 16 months fought right up to the highest bench in the land in order to deport Rosario Chirillo, 64-year-old cobbler, his wife, and six children back to Ohio and won its battle—only to learn today the Chirillos, who are under order to leave May 17, plan to come right back to Mamaroneck after a few days visit in their home town of Wooster.

The long drawn-out legal scrap started in January, 1940, when the state sought to oust the Chirilos on the grounds they applied for relief within a year of their arrival in the state. A public welfare law states a non-resident can be deported if he seeks to be put on the relief rolls within 12 months of his arrival in the state.

Morris Shapiro, attorney for the Chirillo family, today said as soon as the family crosses the state line they will have followed the court order of Judge Frank H. Coyne, which was upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court, requiring them to leave the state. The Chirillo's, he said, may then come right back and remain unmolested unless they again apply for relief. Legal opinion elsewhere lent support to Shapiro's belief.

VICHY, France, May 9 (AP)—Pierre Mendes-France, third of four French notables with military commissions among those arrested for trying to move the government to North Africa last une, appeared for trial today before a military tribunal at Clermont-Ferrand.

Mendes-France, former undersecretary of state, was arrested at Casablanca, French Morocco. He was indicted on charges of desertion in wartime and is liable to 10 years imprisonment, confiscation of property and loss of civil rights.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 9 (AP)—The use of toothpicks, frowned on by some social arbiters, is described as a "sound practice" anytime and anywhere by Dr. I. J. Herschfeld of New York.

The assistant professor in the Columbia University dental school told a New Jersey State Dental Society convention session that the toothpick is "as important a hygiene implement as a tooth brush or dental floss."

Fog Halts Hub-Bound Shipping

Dense fog, with a visability of only 50 feet off Deer island, halted ship traffic in Boston harbor and along the coast today and brought passenger vessels to anchor at both ends of Cape Cod canal.

Of 10 ships due here this morning, not one was able to make port.

Not burdened with the cares of steamship officials, 36 young passengers aboard the Eastern Steamship Lines steamer Boston took the fog as a lark when the ship was held up at the Sandwich end of the canal.

The boys are members of the Lawrence Safety Patrol, making a trip to Washington under sponsorship of the Lawrence Auto Club and other organizations, to take part in the annual safety parade at the capital.

Under the escort of Thomas F. Galvin, Lawrence commissioner of public safety, and Mrs. Galvin, and other Lawrence officials, the boys were given the trip in recognition of their fine work in accident prevention.

At Wing's Neck, on the westerly end of the canal, the Eastern's steamer New York, from New York to Boston, was anchored until the fog lifted.

Near by was the Merchants and Miners Alleghany from Norfolk and Baltimore, and the line's freighter Wyoming from Philadelphia.

SECOND PERSON SEEN IN HESSEL DEATH CAR

Although an Allston night club waitress, charged with murder, already has allegedly confessed shooting Max Hessel, ex-convict and former prize fighter, for refusing her a "last kiss," police detectives probed mysterious angles of the slaying today.

While double checking on all details of the statement made by the waitress, Mrs. Hazel Barber, 45, investigators from police headquarters and the Brighton station pointed to at least two circumstances which have not yet been cleared up satisfactorily:

First, several residents of the Corey Hill section reported seeing two persons in the death car at the murder scene and a third person—the victim—standing outside when the shots were fired. Mrs. Barber said, according to police, that she was alone in the car when she shot Hessel.

ONLY VOICES OF MEN

Second, witnesses who told of hearing the sounds of an argument prior to the shooting all mentioned hearing only men's voices. None reported overhearing high-pitched tones of an excited woman.

Interviewed by detectives before her court arraignment, however, Mrs. Barber insisted she was alone with Hessel at the time and fired the shots when she became infuriated during an argument over his jilting her, according to police.

In response to suggestions that she might be shielding another person in making her alleged confession, Mrs. Barber asserted she was concealing only one thing—the identity of her two sons.

She begged police not to draw the young men into the case and thus far, even though she is being held without bail in Charles st. jail, they have not appeared to comfort their mother. It was believed the waitress' name is different from that of her sons and doubt has been expressed as to whether they know of their mother's plight.

One of the sons, the mother disclosed, is an instructor in a Maine College. Police officials, sympathetic to her pleas, withheld information concerning her background, other than she came to Boston from Maine about 10 years ago.

Police quoted her as saying she had been a close friend of Hessel for about seven years. Recently she has sung and worked as a waitress in Allston night spots, living in Ashton ter., Brighton.

Mrs. Barber told Judge Thomas H. Connolly in Brighton district court that she had not talked with anyone concerning the charges brought against her. In accordance with Massachusetts law, pleas of not guilty were entered for her to charges of murder and assault with intent to kill.

Judge Connolly ordered her held in jail. Because she had mentioned the possibility of attempting suicide, in her alleged confession, a guard was established at her first-floor detention room. However, she displayed the eternal feminine interest in her clothing and attractive appearance.

Turning to Sergt. Joseph Fallon, she asked if it would be possible to obtain more clothing and other necessities from her apartment. On being assured that her request would be granted, Mrs. Barber handed the sergeant a list of articles which she had already made out, and departed with her guards.

FINAL KISS

Deputy Police Supt. James R. Claflin quoted Mrs. Barber as saying she learned Hessel, who served a prison term for complicity in the looting of the Eastern Steamship Co., was to marry another woman. She said she had gone to his home for a final kiss in the hope of parting as friends.

Mrs. Barber was quoted by police as saying that she and Hessel had been friends for seven years, but he planned to marry another.

"I told Max I still loved him and that I was going to kill myself," she confessed, according to police. "He made insulting remarks to me. I thought he was going to beat me, which he had done many times in the past. He acted as though he was disgusted with me."

Film Morals Scandal Probe Pushed

LOS ANGELES, May 9 (INS)—The Los Angeles County grand jury today continued its secret probe of a possible Hollywood film colony morals scandal in which a 16-year-old Minnesota girl claims she was attacked in the home of a film celebrity.

Eugene Frenke, film producer and husband of Anna Sten, the Viennese actress, appeared as a "mystery" witness yesterday, but authorities in charge of the inquiry said Frenke had not involved himself in the charges under investigation in any way.

Because of the secrecy of the grand jury's proceedings, they declined to disclose the nature of his testimony.

Frenke told reporters he had appeared before the grand jury in an effort to aid certain friends of his who are being unjustly accused.

"I was not subpoenaed," he said. "I came voluntarily

The girl, Sylvia Hamalaine, who arrived in Los Angeles several weeks ago from the iron mining town of Hibbing, Minn., in search of a film career, alleged that she was entertained at an improper party at a home in the Santa Monica beach film colony and had been attacked there.

She also claimed she was attacked previous to that by another man.

ESSEX COMMISSIONERS FIRE BLAST AT SHERIFF

SALEM, May 9—In harsh terms at a crowded hearing today, two of Essex County's three county commissioners criticized Sheriff Frank Raymond for allegedly "taking things he was not entitled to" from the county.

While the bulk of the commissioners' charges concerned alleged dressing up of the sheriff's table with unsanctioned milk and cream, eggs and butter and the like, Commr. J. Fred Manning of Lynn declared that Raymond's actions "border on larceny."

Commr. C. F. Nelson Pratt, the chairman, declared that the sheriff had "flagrantly violated the law."

Commr. Frederick Butler of Andover said nothing during the dressing down administered to the sheriff, but sat with his colleagues and smoked cigars.

CROWD AT HEARING

The hearing, to which Sheriff Raymond had been summoned following a personal investigation of conditions at Salem Jail by Manning and Pratt, was held in the commissioners' quarters and was packed with spectators.

At the hearing it was brought out that the sheriff, in March and following a State audit of the jail books, had made a refund of $195 to the county.

This allegedly had been charged the county for milk and cream used in the sheriff's home, although prisoners in the jail were getting no milk or cream.

The sheriff first was questioned at the hearing regarding an alleged attempt by a prisoner at escape from the jail.

CELL BAR SAWED

It was disclosed that Pratt himself, during a visit to the jail within the past few days, had discovered a bar sawed nearly through. The commissioner questioned Sheriff Raymond about guards at the jail and asked sarcastically:

"Were the guards on duty or were they out doing errands?"

Of one particular guard, Pratt asked the sheriff:

"Was that the guard who said we were running a three-ring circus over?"

And of another guard, Pratt asked:

"Is he the guard who said he was going to show the commissioners something?"

IGNORED BY SHERIFF

Sheriff Raymond ignored those comments, but said he has not yet submitted his escape report because his investigation is not completed. Pratt then asked if the prisoner in question had been upholstering some furniture in a room of the jail. The commissioner added:

"Was he repairing a chair for your son?"

"Yes," the sheriff answered, "he was repairing an old-fashioned chair for my son."

Sheriff Raymond replied that his son had furnished the materials. Admitting that his son had not expected to pay for the labor, the sheriff said he would pay, if it was necessary, and he estimated $3 as a fair price.

SHERIFF IS SCORED

On other occasions, said Raymond, prisoners have repaired furniture and been paid, and he has turned the money into the county treasurer's office in a lump sum.

"We have to take your word for it," demanded Pratt, "as to who pays no and who pays yes?"

"That's right," said the sheriff.

"I think that's a most reprehensible practice and I, for one, am not in favor if it."

"Do you know, sheriff, if you had to pay for everything you've taken that you aren't entitled to to, it would cost you more than a year's salary—and you make $4500 a year and found?"

"No, not as much as that,' replied the sheriff.

SATURDAY'S THE BIG DAY IN OUR BOSTON, QUINCY, WALTHAM STORES

CITY PROBES CURLEY PROPERTY TO SETTLE SUIT

The City of Boston will begin an investigation into the property owned by former Gov. James M. Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso to determine whether its value will cover the total $71,000-odd judgements outstanding against them, it was revealed today.

Boston Corporation Counsel Robert Cutler revealed that on Jan. 29, 1941, Curley wrote under oath in superior court he would not be able to meet the judgement against him of $42,735. Santuosso owes $28,525.

The revelation came following the expiration of the time limit for payment by the two men by midnight last night of the money that grew out of a court decision in the well-known General Equipment Corp. case in which Curley and Santosuosso were ordered to reimburse the city.

"Now the city will undertake the customary procedure," Cutler said. "An investigation will be undertaken to determine the value of the property of each. "If the value is sufficient to cover the amount of the judgment, attachment will be levied. If not, each will be required, under supplementary process, to appear in his district court and to swear as to what property he does own."

Mass Meetings Set To Fight El Deficit

Aroused over alleged milking of taxpayers to pay claimed deficits of the Boston Elevated, residents of the Metropolitan Transit District were arranging today a series of mass meetings in protest.

These arrangements were being made following an initial meeting in Dorchester, where the citizens were warned to be on guard against further possible attempts to drag money out of the public's pockets.

Hundreds attending the Dorchester All-Together Movement meeting in Whiton Hall, near Codman sq., were told by Probate Judge Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., that the Elevated is carrying the unused Atlantic ave. overhead structure on its books as a $3,150,000 asset.

KELLY RAPS GOVERNOR

Taxpayers were urged by Judge Wilson to move early against the possibility that they might be forced to shell out $3,150,000 for this dead structure in the event that the Elevated is taken over by the state.

Sharing the speakers' platform with Francis E. Kelly, former lieutenant-governor, Judge Wilson discussed the circumstances which have brought the Elevated's financial set-up to a controversial head.

He told of efforts by Dorchester officials to get at the true picture of the road's finances and said these attempts resulted in the recent Finance Commission investigation.

Kelly sharply criticized Gov. Saltonstall for refusing to order an Elevated investigation long ago.

SWINDLE CHARGED

And when the full story of the Elevated under public ownership finally is written, said Kelly, the Elevated operation will go down as "the 20th century swindle."

John Carzis, president of the All-Together Movement, presided at the mass meeting, at which a resolution was adopted instructing a delegation to call on the Governor and ask him to withhold payment of the newest claimed Elevated deficit for year ending March 31.

The delegation will consist of Kelly and Dorchester legislators and city councillors.

Court Advises Cop to Cut Off Moustache

A cop is a cop, so if he has a mustache he's a cop with a mustache, so why argue about it.

That's the way it is, it seems, with Warren F. Burlingame, 48, of Dover, who, when it was suggested his traffic violation case be continued because the arresting officer wasn't present, pointed to Officer Leo S. Gagnon, in Newton court today, and said:

"Why continue it? There's the officer who arrested me."

Gagnon was flabbergasted. "Who, me?" he said, dropping his cap. "Not me!"

"No," said Inspector William H. Dowling. "The arresting officer was David Cummings. They both have mustaches."

"Better shave yours off," Judge Mayberry advised Officer Gagnon, continuing the case until May 15.

Burlingame is charged with failure to slow down at an intersection.

Woman May Lose Eye From Car Injuries

A Watertown woman suffered injuries, which threaten her with the possible loss of sight in one eye, when an auto in which she was riding struck a Boston Elevated pole near Neponset Circle today.

Mrs. Marie Howes, 35, of Purvis st., Watertown, suffered a ruptured left eyeball, fractured jaw and severe head cuts in the crash. She is at City Hospital.

Police said the driver was Charles H. Kelsey, 33, of Clements rd., Waltham. He suffered possible rib fractures.

BOMB SHELTER FOR BOSTON COMMON

Plans for a sample air raid shelter to be built under Boston Common, the first public undertaking of its kind in the United States, were approved today by Park Commr. William P. Long.

The plans were submitted by the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety appointed by Governor Saltonstall in connection with national defense measures.

Construction of the shelter, which will be located at the corner of Boylston and Charles sts., will start May 14. It will be replica of those scattered all over England.

Application to build the shelter was made by Maj.-Gen. Daniel Needham, retired, chairman of the committee. The purpose in building it is to acquaint Bostonians with shelter construction and the protection provided.

The shelter will be 8 by 12 feet, with the roof located three feet below the surface of the ground and covered with sod to disguise it from the eyes of "enemy" bombers.

On May 16 young women and girls who will graduate in the first class turned out by the Women's Civilian Defense School will stage a demonstration at the site of the shelter.

'Mad Dog' Espositos End Hunger Strike

OSSINING N. Y., May 9 (INS)—The "Mad Dog" Esposito brothers, doomed to die in the electric chair next month for murder during a New York city payroll robbery, broke their hunger strike today.

Warden Lwis E. Lawes' office said the brothers, William and Anthony, had drunk several quarts of milk. They still refused to talk to anyone.

Reds in Brookline Active, Legion Cries

Brookline residents were warned today that peace meetings being held regularly in their town are merely alleged fronts for Communists seeking new members and supporters.

This was the charge of Lawrence E. Hanson, chairman of the annual Americanization Day mass meeting and parade sponsored by the Brookline Post, American Legion, which featured addresses before a crowd of more than 1500 at Brookline high school.

Hanson told the crowd that a mass meeting scheduled for Wednesday night at Whitney Hall under local sponsorship of the Massachusetts Peace Council and the American Peace Mobilization, includes speeches by persons suspected of Communist activities.

Hanson also charged that on the speakers' platform will be Communists who are seeking to enlist Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups into joining a "United front," similar to the Front Populaire of conquered France.

The Brookline Post of the Legion also has been investigating movements with innocent appearing names, one of which already has been brought to the attention of the proper authorities, Commander Maurice N. Abrahamson told the audience.

More than 35 patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations took part in the program. Principal speakers were Rabbi William F. Rosenblum of Temple Israel, New York city; the Rev. Francis X. Meehan of St. Lawrence's Church and the Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt of the Harvard Congregational Church.

Waltham Bakery President Found

Missing from his Brookline home since April 18, James J. Flynn, 48-year-old Waltham bakery president, has been located in Springfield and removed to a hospital there, his wife, Mrs. Ella Flynn, disclosed today.

Mrs. Flynn said her husband, apparently an amnesia sufferer, was recognized in the hotel lobby yesterday by friends who chanced to stop there.

Search for Flynn, president of Weston bakeries, who lives in Stanton rd., Brookline, had extended to Miami, Fla., after his wife reported April 30 that he had disappeared eight days earlier.

She suggested, at the time, he might have gone to that resort, where they had spent the winter in previous years, but Miami police reported no trace of him.

Jimmy Walker Czar of Clothes

HOLLYWOOD, May 9 (INS)—James J. Walker, former mayor of New York is more interested—yet—in clothes than he is in acting as a movie censor.

James J. Walker

Walker came to Hollywood, he said today, in the interests of his present job, which is czar of the New York city cloak and suit industry.

He denied any interest in the job of censor for the motion picture industry, recently vacated by Joe Breen. No offer has been made, Walker declares.

He came here to attend the annual convention of the recovery board of the national cloak and suit industry.

400 British Planes Bomb German Cities

"The moon and the weather favored the attack and though it was claimed by the Germans this morning that their defenses dispersed the attack, our aircraft were in fact prevented neither by night fighters nor anti-aircraft barrage from streaming over both cities in a constant procession and discharging their whole load on appointed targets.

"Pilots' individual reports speak of 'areas a mass of flames in which it was impossible to distinguish separate fires' of 'terrific explosions and smoke rising to 10,000 feet' and of 'our most powerful bombs dropped into the heart of the raging fires.'"

10 PLANES LOST

This sweep—described as the RAF's "heaviest yet"—cost the British 10 planes, by their own admission.

In attacks by daylight yesterday on German shipping off the Norwegian coast one additional British plane was lost, but a German escort vessel was reported on fire and sinking by the stern.

Hitler's air armada meanwhile swept across England hammering vital port and industrial areas and inflicting considerable damage at a cost of 13 planes credited to the blazing guns of British fighters.

The main targets of the Nazi raiders last night were the Humber region on the northeast coast and two districts in the industrial midlands.

Bombs also fell on London for the first time since April 19, on a northwest coast town and on other areas, mostly in eastern and southern England.

BOMB HUMBER AREA

Damage in the Humber region—which was attacked for the second successive night—was considerable, a communique said, and it was feared that casualties there would prove heavy. Substantial damage also was acknowledged in one North Midlands district.

The port of Hull, bombed on numerous occasions during the World War, apparently was the objective of the Germans in the Humber raids. The city, with a population of about 350,000, is an important fishing center as well as a port for overseas trade.

School children were being removed from the Humber area today after two nights of mass bombing. It was also necessary to set up a compulsory billeting scheme to find shelter for the homeless.

Many persons were made homeless in one village in eastern England, but the casualties there were small because the houses were built of stone.

Residential and working-class areas in the North Midlands were hard hit. In southern England a low-flying raider dropped bombs which buried eight persons in wreckage.

51 NAZIS DOWN

Casualties and damage elsewhere, the government declared, were not extensive. A few casualties were reported in London, which was under alarm more than four hours. Intermittent gunfire sounded in the capital area.

The toll of German planes credited to British fighters last night brought to 51 the total reported downed in the 30 hours ended at dawn. Twenty-four were reported downed Wednesday night—a record for a single night's operations—and 14 yesterday in daylight.

Patrols of British fighters were waiting to meet the Nazi raiders when they began roaring across the channel shortly after dusk last evening, and the opposing air forces were locked at once in a fierce combat which continued through most of the night.

The chatter of machine-guns was audible above the drone of motors as the British fighters sought to break the Nazi formations.

It was the eighth successive night of stepped-up German raids on England. Since May 1 the average length of nightly alerts in a half-dozen principal areas has been about six hours.

Liverpool, bombed heavily for seven nights, apparently escaped unscathed last night.

Berlin Admits Camps, Hospital Hit by RAF

BERLIN, May 8 (AP)—Single British planes passed Berlin in last night's raids on Germany, the high command said today and penetrated as far as the region of Posen, formerly in Poland.

No bombs were reported dropped in Berlin, but strong British forces were admitted to have showered explosive and fire bombs at several places in the northwestern coastal regions of Germany, chiefly at Hamburg and Bremen.

A "considerable number" of deaths was caused among the civilian population, and some industrial damage was admitted, but it was said officially that the greatest damage was to residential sections.

At Bremen, informed sources said a children's hospital and maternity home were hit, causing several deaths, and a direct hit on a war prisoners' camp was said to have killed and wounded many inmates.

Hamburg apartment houses were reported hit along with a labor camp when there were a a number of deaths.

German chasers and anti-aircraft were credited with bringing down 11 of the British raiders, bringing the total bag of British craft to 39 for Wednesday and Thursday.

Walsh Fights Convoy Move

Army and Navy, the President can order convoys. Whether he wants to be doubly sure and ask Congress for authority is up to him. But Congress would either have to grant broad power or regulate convoying. And if the President asked permission he would have to give reasons and disclose secret information.

"Further, if a bill were asked, delay would result because hearings would have to be held and there would be debate. If the President is sure he has the right my thought is it is up to him."

Rep. Vorys (R.) of Ohio:

"I think the President will go ahead and order convoys. Congress could stop convoys, but in the absence of action the President can order them."

Rep Luther Johnson (D.) of Texas:

"Undoubtedly he has the power. If the President thought convoys necessary, to seek legislation might cause fatal delay. I don't think he should have to seek legislation if he felt it was necessary to do it."

BRITISH NEAR MOP-UP IN IRAQ WAR

By MERRILL MUELLER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, May 9—While the situation in Iraq remained unchanged overnight, the "German clique" in the Bagdad government of Rashid Ali Al Gailani was represented today as losing its control over the Iraq regime.

British sources said this development resulted from successful British military action and veiled threats by Turkey, Iran and Arabia to break off diplomatic and economic relations with Iraq unless the Bagdad regime restores peace immediately.

Latest military reports from Iraq indicate the British forces captured six howitzers and a number of armored cars and trucks—all equipment which can be used against the Iraq troops that have retired from Habbaniyah and now are sniping from the hills.

Some "unimportant rioting" was reported at Basra, the sole Iraq seaport at the top of the Persian Gulf. British forces have occupied Basra's commercial buildings, banks and telegraph offices.

Italians Admit Bengasi Blasted

ROME, May 9 (AP)—The British fleet and air force, in an assault similar to the bombardment of Tripoli on April 22, attacked the Libyan port of Bengasi Wednesday night but caused few casualties and "unimportant damage," the Italians announced today.

Bengasi, taken by the British in their westward sweep last winter and regained by the Italians, is about 350 miles from the Egyptian-Libyan frontier where Axis forces driving toward the Suez Canal have been battling the British for weeks.

The British reported 1000 tons of shells were hurled into Tripoli in the April 22 attack, described as the heaviest of its kind ever delivered.

Italian troops have regained a position in the Amba Alaji sector of northern Ethiopia after losing it to the British, the Fascist high command announced today.

The communique said "considerable losses" were inflicted on the British, who had occupied the position after a big artillery and air offensive.

London reported that British East African forces captured an Italian machine gun company and occupied some more high ground around Amba Alaji. Around Tobruk, in North Africa, activity was confined to air raids.

Petain Suffers Kidney Ailment

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—The Yorkshire News said today it had been informed that Marshal Petain, 85-year-old French chief of state, had been rushed from Vichy to the Rivier in an attempt to relieve a kidney ailment.

The newspaper said Vice-Premier Admiral Darlan had been warned of the possibility of grave complications for the old marshal.

Tuesday a Vichy dispatch said Petain had gone by special train Monday to his Riviera estate at Villeneuve-Loubert. He was understood, in Vichy, to be interested in observing progress of work being done on the property.

U. S. IN DRIVE ON AXIS AIR LINES IN SO. AMERICA

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 9 (INS)—As a major part of the Western Hemisphere defense program, the United States government, it was learned today, has embarked upon a far-reaching campaign to wipe out every German and Italian air line in Latin America.

American dollars and diplomacy are being utilized to break the Axis aeronautical hold on South America.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles is directing the diplomatic end of the drive. Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones is providing the dollars to help finance replacement of the Axis air services.

The state department already has succeeded in talking the governments of Colombia and Peru into ousting the Nazi airlines in those countries.

Efforts now are being made to persuade Brazil, Bolivia and Ecuador to do likewise.

The American government hopes to replace the Axis airlines with services operated and controlled by the nations of this hemisphere. The plan is to have American-made planes piloted by South American aviators fly most of the commercial routes in Latin America. Arrangements are being made to train Latin American aviators in this country.

Existence of the rapidly expanding Axis air service was considered a grave threat to Western Hemisphere defense, and especially the defense of the Panama Canal.

At one time German commercial aviators in Colombia were operating within miles of the canal. The Germaviators were known to have flown over the canal in recent years and to have photographed the canal Zone as well as the entire Colombian terrain stretching along both the Pacific coast and the Caribbean sea.

German planes being operated in Peru until late last month were Lufthansa machines with a cruising range that could enable them to fly non-stop to the Panama Canal with a load of bombs.

ROME CLAIMS HITS ON NINE BRITISH SHIPS

ROME, May 9 (AP)—Torpedo and bomb hits on two British battleships, an aircraft carrier, two cruisers, a destroyer and three merchant ships and destruction of 16 British planes were reported by the Italian high command today in one of the most violent onslaughts of the war in the western Mediterranean.

The daily war bulletin said the assault started when a heavily protected British convoy was sighted yesterday in the western Mediterranean and continued into the night with Fascist planes scoring repeated hits with bombs and torpedoes on the British vessels.

It did not claim that any of the ships were sunk.

The high command acknowledged the loss of five Italian planes and added that three other damaged craft landed at their base with wounded aboard. Thirteen of the British planes were claimed downed by Italian airmen and three by Germans.

Student Riots Irk Fascists

ROME, May 9 (AP)—Rome University authorities took disciplinary measures today against students who two days ago demonstrated in protest against rearrangement of their final examinations schedule to enable them to enter the Army June 1.

Some students complained that advancing the date of the examinations left them insufficient time to prepare. They demanded that the examinations either be omitted or the passing standards lowered.

Police arrested several youths during the demonstrations, which occurred in front of the university registrar's office. University authorities said the university is functioning normally now and that examinations will be held as planned.

The New York Times said that advices reaching Washington explained the demonstration as a protest against Germany because of a shortage of bread.

Italians Occupy Two Islands in Aegean

ROME, May 9 AP)—Detachments of Italian infantry and sailors have occupied the Greek islands of Samoan and Furni in the Aegean in a combined action by Fascist air and naval forces, the high command declared today. The islands are only a short distance off the Turkish coast and immediately north of the Italian Dodecanese group. Occupation of the Greek islands of Thasos, Samothrace, Lesbos and Chios, further north, already has been announced by the Germans.

F. D. Stays in Bed On Doctor's Orders

WASHINGTON, May 9 (INS)—Still running a fraction of a degree of temperature, President Roosevelt again remained in bed under orders of Rear Adm. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early reported that "the patient was improving and complaining to his doctor" that restraints be removed, but McIntire deemed it advisable for the Chief Executive to remain abed.

Paraguay President's Son Goes to Warm Springs for Paralysis Treatment

ONCE IDLE, NOW GLAD HE DIDN'T END LIFE

PITTSBURGH, May 9 (AP)—"Disappointed American," a jobless young husband who threatened to kill himself by leaping from a downtown skyscraper on Christmas Eve, 1939, rejoiced today that he didn't—he's now one of the happiest Americans.

Things have changed a lot since then. He works every day and has gained 27 pounds. His pretty wife, who was ill, looks like a new woman. Their 4-year-old son is in better health, too.

The case of the young man, whose identity was concealed because of the circumstances, aroused wide interest. He wrote the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph of his suicide plans, [illegible]

Then the newspaper went to work. It published letters from a minister and a priest, counseling the man to get hold of himself, not to bow to defeat but to think of his wife and son.

The counselors followed that up by providing medicine for his sick wife and helping him get a job.

ELECTRIC SHOCK IN BRAIN CURE FOR 'MONDAY BLUES'

RICHMOND, Va., May 9 (AP)—A mild shot of electricity through the brain, one of the newest treatments for insanity, is good for the "Monday blues."

This kind of funk, which everyone knows, gets to be a real menace to many people by deepening into constant depression, even to suicidal impulses.

It is these more serious Monday blues where the electric shock is showing great value, as described today to the American Psychiatric Association.

In others, more troublesome forms of mental disease, the association was told, the electricity is being widely tried, with occasional good, almost miraculous results, but mainly with disappointment.

Electric shock is the outgrowth of discovery that sugar (insulin) and metrazol shock would cure some of the insane. Electric shock is less dangerous.

The patient lies on a table. Electrode paste is rubbed on both sides of his forehead. Then to these spots an electric current, or 100 to 400 thousandths of an ampere, is applied for half a second or less.

Instant unconsciousness is the first result. The patient remembers nothing about it. He is unconscious for a few minutes, during which there may be muscular convulsions.

Then he wakes up and is mentally confused from a few minutes up to maybe a few hours. At first he can't write his name, or copy a drawing of a circle and square side by side.

Exactly what happens to the brain in this period is not certain. But many of these people with mild cases get well. Sometimes they need several shocks over a period of days or weeks.

Forty such persons who merely came to his office for the shocks were reported by Dr. Abraham Myerson of Boston. Many were working and continued work during treatment. They could go home, or back to work after the shock.

Three injured themselves by muscular contractions. One or two had a few weeks of bad memory. They would wander around the house trying to recall what they had started to do.

Round Steel Houses to Sell at $750

KANSAS CITY, May 9 (AP)—The Butler Manufacturing Co. plans mass production of pre-fabricated steel houses to help solve the defense industry housing problem.

Modeled after metal corn cribs which the company already manufactures, the round steel structures are designed to shelter eight persons each and sell for $750. Each will have 15 plastic skylights for sun rays and 10 portholes for vision and ventilation.

R. Buckminster Fuller, engineer and former technical editor of Fortune Magazine, designed the houses.

E. E. Norquist, president of the Butler Co., said his company plants here, in Minneapolis and at Galesburg, Ill., could manufacture 1000 a day if necessary.

Fuller said the houses could be erected in three days by unskilled labor, sparing skilled workmen for defense industries.

Hamilton-Burr Legal Paper Found In N. Y. Court File

NEW YORK, May 9 (INS)—A complaint signed by Alexander Hamilton, and naming Aaron Burr among a group of defendants, was found on file in the storeroom of the federal court building here today.

The document, written in longhand on heavy parchment and demanding the execution of a deed conveying a huge tract in the Ontario country, was filed Aug. 14, 1799, just five years before Hamilton died of a wound received in a duel with Burr.

U. S. Ships to Sail Red Sea, China

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP) — The maritime commission said today that service will be inaugurated to the Red Sea area with ships of United States registry, and that additional service will be inaugurated to China, but declined to give any details.

President Roosevelt recently removed the Red Sea area from the combat zone in an obvious effort to aid the British to obtain delivery of supplies with American ships.

Boy Scouts Find Missing Maine Boy

Rumford, Me., May 9—Missing from his home in nearby West Peru since noon yesterday, and sought by hundreds of volunteer searchers, Boy Scouts, police and firemen, 6-year-old Robert Merrill was found today.

A squad of Boy Scouts found him in a patch of dense woods about a half mile from his home. There he had been, through heavy rain and 40-degree temperatures, wandering for 24 hours. Doctors said he appeared unharmed by his experience.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Cleston Garneau, reported him missing yesterday. Police took up the search, worked all night under the direction of Dep. Sheriff John Babb, with searchlights.

The boy was found near a cliff called Tumbledown Dick by three Boy Scouts—Alvin Gallant, Ernest Stearns and Frank Jordon—a short while after they had found his sweater.

His face and body was covered with scratches, they said, and his clothes were sopping wet. He was crying.

Food Stamps Banned In Liquor Purchases

Sellers of liquor were warned today by the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission that if they accept government food stamps for the purchase of alcoholic beverages their licenses may be suspended or revoked.

The ABC asked local licensing authorities of all cities and towns in which the stamp plan has been adopted to convey the warning to licensees that "all kinds of alcoholic beverages are expressly excluded from the definition of food" and that the stamps may be accepted for food purchases only.

FRENCH AFRICA OPENED TO NAZI TROOPS

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—Reuters (British news agency) quoted the Berlin correspondent of the Swiss Basler Nachrichten today as reporting it was believed the Vichy government had agreed to the passage of German troops through French provinces and mandated territories —including Syria.

This, it was reported, was thought to be Germany's price for German concessions concerning the occupation of the French homeland.

Syria, the correspondent was quoted as saying, now seems to be "at Germany's disposal."

France to Get U. S. Wheat

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—The American government has agreed provisionally to permit France to buy two ship cargoes of wheat monthly to feed the unoccupied zone, Gaston Henry-Haye, the French ambassador, announced at the State Department today.

After calling on Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, the ambassador told reporters France would purchase the wheat in America out of funds now frozen in this country.

Flour shipments heretofore sent to unoccupied France have been gifts of the American Red Cross.

The ambassador said that Welles told him the arrangement of allowing two ships monthly would be continued "provided the general situation was not changed."

BABY STRANGLES

AUBURN, Me., May 9 (AP)—Amy Marie, two, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hunnewell, was strangled at her home here when beans with which she had been playing lodged in her windpipe.

Ford Plant Bomb, Just a Firecracker

DETROIT, May 9 (AP)—Detective Lieut. Reuben Orr of the Dearborn police said today that a giant firecracker apparently planted by a prankster, exploded in a shower room in the tool and die house of the Ford Motor Co. this morning, giving rise to reports a power bomb had been discovered.

Police Inspector C. W. Slamer said the explosion did not occur near enough to the tools and dies to do any damage, even if it had been a bomb. The firecracker, he said, was wrapped in brown paper and sealed with gum tape.

The Detroit office of the FBI said it was investigating, but refused any information other than that all such reports are checked.

Navy Yard Annex Strike Ordered

is to be employed directly by the Navy Department or by contractors and sub-contractors, with prevailing rates of wages to be paid and working rules and conditions observed.

"It is a sad commentary," the report says, "when one learns that the U. S. Department of Labor and our State Employment Service report a shortage of labor in the marine and shipbuilding industry involving approximately 60 classifications and then to find that the WPA continues on in competition with available labor, competent and qualified to do the work in question."

The report records 59 unions affiliated with the Council as "being ready and willing to assist our government in its plans for national defense," but adds:

"We feel strongly that the use of WPA relief labor is inimical to the best interest of our citizenry and shows absolute ignorance of the actual status of employment of labor in the construction field in this area."

Efforts have been made to adjust differences since April 24, according to Johnson. Conferences failed to bring results, he charged. It was voted then:

"To notify all union members employed on construction projects at the South Boston drydock not to report for work on Monday, May 12," the report read.

Contracting firms affected are Merritt, Chapman and Scott, Sawyer Construction Co., Stone & Webster Co., N. E. Foundation Co. and Raymond Concrete Pile Co.

Newport Strike Hits U. S. Housing Projects

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—Navy officials said today a strike of carpenters in Newport, R. I., had not yet affected any of their building projects, but officials of the U. S. housing authority said it had caused some interference on a defense housing project in Newport.

Double Guard On Son John

The detail of secret service men guarding John Roosevelt and his family has been doubled, it was learned today, although the federal operatives refused to discuss reasons for the move.

Doubling of the guard, which now totals six men working in pairs on three eight-hour shifts, was disclosed when the youngest son of the President moved from his winter home in Beacon st., Back Bay, to summer quarters in Swallow Cove, Nahant.

Last summer, only one secret service man was on duty during each of the eight-hour vigils.

CONQUERED NATIONS LOSE RED ENVOYS

MOSCOW, May 9 (AP)—Soviet Russia withdrew recognition today from Yugoslavia, Belgium and Norway as sovereign states—an action interpreted in diplomatic quarters as indicating a new understanding with Germany.

Diplomatic sources believed Joseph Stalin, who only this week assumed the premiership, was personally settling differences with Germany over Nazi penetration into the Balkans, in order to maintain the Soviet policy of peace and neutrality.

Today's press reflected this trend, prominently displaying reports of an Axis air raid on the Suez Canal and David Lloyd George's abstention from the British House of Commons vote of confidence in Premier Churchill.

Whether Russia now would join the Axis was not known. She refused to do so last November.

Russia declared officially yesterday, in reaction to foreign reports ,that she has not and does not intend to concentrate troops on her western frontiers, facing German dominated territory.

The Yugoslav minister, Milan Gavrilovic, on April 5 signed with Foreign Commissar Molotov a Russian-Yugoslav treaty of friendship and non-aggression. Yugoslavia was invaded the next day and has been conquered by Germany.

Norway was invaded April 9, 1940, and Belgium a year ago tomorrow.

After the coup d'etat in which a pro-Axis Yugoslav government was overthrown late in March, the Communist party organ, Pravda, said that the Moscow government had not sent congratulations to Belgrade on the repudiation of the pro-Axis regime, but that "a people worthy of their glorious past deserve congratulations, and if such congratulations had occurred there would be nothing unusual."

Soviet Ousts Belgian, Norwegian Envoys

MOSCOW, May 9 (AP)—The Soviet foreign commissariat notified the Norwegian and Belgian legations today that since their German-occupied countries no longer are sovereign states their ministers in Moscow have no official standing.

Norwegian minister Einar Maseng and First Secretary Ivar Lunde and Belgian Minister Guy Heyndrix and Counsellor Harold Heyman prepared to leave as soon as their affairs are put in order.

2 Billion Spending Cut Sought

WASHINGTON, May 9 (INS)—Details of a program to cut almost $2,000,000,000 from non-defense spending were disclosed today by members of the congressional economy block.

The group, moribund during recent defense outlays, has come to life because the administration has made no moves to follow up Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's plea for non-defense saving, members declared.

Its program has been worked out by Rep. Taber (R.), of New York, ranking minority member of the House appropriations committee, after conferences with both Republican and Democratic leaders. It contemplates a drive for the following cuts in non-defense activities:

From relief $800,000,000; from the Civilian Conservation Corps $250,000,000; from the National Youth Administration, $75,000,000; from farm tenancy, $50,000,000; Surplus Commodities Corporation, $100,000,000; Farm Security Administration, $100,000,000; civilian pilot training program, $20,000,000; and miscellaneous small cuts "from many agencies like the Federal Communications Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Power Commission, etc., $503,000,000.

Taber said his group would justify the huge relief cut—from an estimated $1,000,000,000 down to only $200,000,000—"because at the present time they report a shortage of labor and yet go on spending money on the WPA."

Jews Are Further Restricted in Paris

PARIS, via Berlin, May 9 (INS)—German military authorities today forbade Jews to work in wholesale or retail establishments, restaurants, insurance concerns, banks or in establishments engaged in brokerage, real estate, transportation or shipping.

The order, effective May 20 throughout occupied France, stipulated prison terms and fines for violations.

F. D. Estate Blast Story False

RHINEBECK, N. Y., May 9 (AP)—State Police say no charges will be placed against a 68-year-old carpenter who admits as "false" his report two men informed him they had planted dynamite on President Roosevelt's Hyde Park estate.

Trooper Henry Findt of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation asserted last night the workman, employed on the estate only a week, explained he related the story "because I thought the police were not active enough in picking up Fifth Columnists."

State Police added the carpenter said the "men," about 35 and speaking broken English, asserted they planted the explosive with the intention of "setting it off if the United States went to war."

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

RUNNING STORY (Or an hour with the working press at a couple of ringsides:) Lou Holtz finally relinquishes the floor of The Mayfair to the dancers . . . He played between 35 and 40 minutes. It passed like a flash—and there's no better criticism than that . . . That's a sweet-looking girl with Paul Dever . . . Paul can dance, at that . . . And the lady is a perfect partner . . . They are doing a modified rhumba . . . Paul is wearing a dinner jacket . . . His girl is wearing a gown of vivid red . . . Lou Holtz stops for a chat.

WE HAVEN'T SEEN HIM (to speak with) in 16 years . . . The last time was when Sam Harris "discovered him," although Sam never did find a part in a Harris show for Lou . . . We were with Sam and Mrs. Harris and Max Blumenthal and Mrs. Blumenthal . . . Mrs. Harris was one of the Brookline Nolans and Mrs. B. was the former Louise Meyers of Roxbury . . . (Max died and left Louise a couple of million . . .)

MADLY IN LOVE with her, Max had persuaded Sam to produce a musical version of the famous race-track story "Checkers." They called it "Honey Girl" . . . It was the first Harris production after Sam and George M. Cohan split . . . It ran for months at the old Cort Theater in Park Square . . . Then it flopped in New York . . . Louise Mayo was starred . . . Another star of that show was lovely Edna Bates . . . In the course of the Boston run, Edna met Charles H. Innes, the late Boston political leader . . . Edna became Mrs. Innes.

I WONDER IF LOUISE AND EDNA—both very wealthy now—have kept in touch with one another? . . . Back to Lou, and our last meeting . . . We remember Mr. Harris' extreme enthusiasm over the young comedian . . . Sam had big plans for him, but George White had the call on Holtz' services . . . This particular night, Sam was in charge of entertainment at a party in the swanky old Lakeville Golf Club, in Great Neck, New York . . . Holtz was making his debut before that particular stratum of Long Guyland sassiety . . . We started talking about it . . . A kindly and very beautiful girl now at our table was present that night, too . . . She was letting Lou down lightly, in reminiscing . . . (Previously, we had recalled privately how—after Sam's terrific build-up—Lou didn't get over at all with that particular audience) . . . "You were very shy, I remember," she was telling Mr. Holtz, in a gentle manner.

WHEN LOU HEARD HER TALK — Something suddenly dawned on him . . . "Your're one of the Nolans," he exclaimed . . . Then, he got enthusiastic . . . (All of Broadway loved the Nolans—from Bawston, as Broadway used to accent it) . . . Lou got back to himself, a performer's right . . . "This was a fly audience," he says . . . "I wasn't kidding when I said I loved that story about 'Ginsburg the Great' . . . But some audiences don't get it . . . The tag, I mean . . . When Ginsburg is stretched out on the floor, crabwise, with his feet in the air. (Note: In his enactment of the story, Mr. Holtz actually assumes the sprawling position on the floor.)

THERE IS GINSBURG stretched with the soles of his feet pointing to the sky . . . His act as a juggler has collapsed and the doctor is telling him he's through . . . "Through, am I?" yells Ginsburg . . . "Just throw me a Japanese!" . . . We remember having seen Saki, the popular Jap soundman and a real personality of the Boston Rialto, seated with George Clarke in the foyer as we came in.

BUT THE HOLTZ GAG is not meant to slight the Japs . . . The punch-line depends on an understanding that vaudeville used to be crowded with Japanese acrobats . . . (Stray thought: If they ever toss a party for Saki, which is possible, there's a ready-made song . . . Dick Whiting and Ray Egan's immortal "Japanese Sandman" . . . Remember? . . . "He's a Japanese Sandman" . . . A parody for Saki's party would be a cinch . . . "He's a Japanese Soundman."

MR. HOLTZ CONTINUES: "What they laugh at in Boston, they laugh at in New York . . . But there's a difference . . . A couple goes to the theater in Boston with the intention of seeing a good show and enjoying it . . . In New York, it's just the opposite . . . Before they go to the show, they hope it stinks . . . Say that for me, George . . . Or can you use that word . . ." (Yeah, we can, but we don't like it, either).

MR. DEVER CROSSES from the dance floor and greets Owen Gallagher, who is accompanied (we think) by his brother, Dan . . . Paul and Owen shake hands . . . Flash back to 1938: Owen just missed winning the nomination for lieutenant-governor that year . . . And that was the year that scores of political experts think that Paul Dever would have cake-walked home had he run for Governor . . . Another "if"—If Paul had made the race that year instead of last, he and Owen possibly would have paired up as a winning ticket . . . Saltonstall would have been easier for Dever then . . . Frank Kelly had whipped him two years before for lieutenant-governor.

BENZADRINE BAD ANTIDOTE FOR LIQUOR

RICHMOND, May 9 (AP)—Medical evidence that the book, Alcoholic Anonymous, and benzedrine, both are helping to make total abstainers of drunks was presented to the American Psychiatric Ass'n today.

Also a special warning was issued against trying benzedrine as a liquor antidote while drinking. This drug delays the jag, which later may strike with unexpected and disastrous results.

"Alcoholics Anonymous" was described by Dr. Walter A. Thompson of Rockland (N. Y.) State Hospital. It is a book issued in 1931 by anonymous, recovered chronic alcoholics.

The book, he said, is founded on the principle that the drinker is powerless himself against alcohol and can only recover by turning his will over to a power greater than himself: "God as we understand him." "Alcoholics Anonymous" clubs assist, going anywhere, any time, to help any alcoholic who wants them.

Over 50 per cent of the men at Rockland who took this treatment, said Dr. Thompson, had been restored to normal life. Often these men relapsed once or twice.

Benzedrine, said Dr. Wilfred Bloomberg of Boston City Hospital, is useful in skilled hands, to relieve the depressing effects of giving up alcohol, and so to be of real help in recovery.

The warning about benzedrine's peculiar trick of delaying jags was issued by Drs. Max Rinkel and Abraham Myerson of Boston. The drug delays the absorption which causes intoxication.

They tried alcoholic jags on two pigeons, one with benzedrine. The bird without the drug was dead drunk in 25 minutes, the other bird still cold sober. But four hours later, when the first bird had sobered, the one with the drug became drunk.

Engineer, 70, Dies Of Burns In Crash

EAST HARTFORD, Ct., May 9 (AP)—A 70-year-old engineer died of severe steam burns today shortly after his switch engine was partly overturned by a Hartford-to-Boston freight train that crashed into it.

FARM LABOR SHORTAGE

SPRINGFIELD, May 9—A serious shortage in farm labor in western and central Massachusetts was discussed today by representatives of organized farm groups and officials of the State Employment Service.

BRITAIN'S PHOHIBITIVE TAX PLAN TO BE AIRED HERE

WASHINGTON, May 9 (INS)—John Maynard Keynes, British economist, it was learned today shortly will report to United States government officials on the results of England's efforts to control her economy in wartime.

American representative of the British ministry of economic warfare, Noel F. Hall, already has called on Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and other officials, to make arrangements for a round of conferences when Keynes arrives in Washington in the next few days.

The Keynes' plan of "forced savings" and control of the volume of consumer purchasing power through prohibitive taxation, has been in operation in England since war was declared in 1939. The plan has been studied and approved by such high government officials as Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Marriner S. Eccles, and former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission Jerome Frank.

Frank, in an unpublicized speech before the United States Army War College, analyzed the Keynes plan and spoke of the necessity of duplicating the effort in America in time of emergency or war.

Economists in the treasury view the present tax program and defense savings bond drive as two steps which run directly along the lines of the British plan. Eccles, and Leon Henderson, director of the Office of Price Control and Civilian Supply, have told congressional committees that taxes should be levied on certain luxury goods to make the price prohibitively high and free manufacturing facilities for national defense purposes.

Keynes, upon his arrival in New York yesterday by clipper plane from Lisbon, reported that British workers would have their income tax payments deducted from their pay envelopes this year.

Circus Instead of Speakers Is Latest in Graduations

ELK CITY, Okla., May 9 (AP)—The whole town turns out for graduation at Elk City's elementary school.

It's a circus.

Last night's was the fifth in as many years, with child actors instead of speakers.

The audience laughed loudly as the entire student body of 360 children presented a program of trick bike riders, black-faced comedians, trapeze performers, tap and rhumba dancers, tumblers, Argentine beauties in scanty costumes, and even a "strip-tease."

After a curtain-raiser or so came the strip act.

A boy dressed as a policeman came out chasing another boy attired as a girl. The cop snatched frequently. An article of clothing came off each time. One last pull and off came the dress, exposing a well-padded corset and brassiere.

The crowd was kept rapt right up to the finale—a patriotic spectacle featuring the Pioneer Woman, the Statue of Liberty and the Star-Spangled Banner.

Harlan Coffman, school principal, termed it a success and plans to continue the practice.

"We believe," he said, "we have a better deal to offer our children with our circus. If we selected a few outstanding students for a program and had the other children listen, the listeners wouldn't get as much out of it. We make everybody a part of our program.

"The parents of the children like the idea. They co-operate with us beautifully."

Thirty beautiful girls were being groomed today for the seventh annual Nashoba apple blossom festival at Westford on Sunday. From it will emerge the 1941 Apple Queen.

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., will crown the girl chosen Queen Nashoba VII at ceremonies scheduled at Whitney Playground in Westford.

Sen. Lodge will be principal speaker at the festival held in the heart of Middlesex county's famed Nashoba district, where the Baldwin apple and Concord grape were created and reach their greatest state of perfection.

The Queen will be chosen from among 30 beautiful girls picked as finalists from as many towns in the district. Reports from town chairmen indicate that the apple blossoms are blooming in all their pink and white glory and will reach a peak of beauty by the week end, to provide a perfect setting for the festival and coronation.

The famous "Blossom Trail," over which countless thousands of motorists pass each year to view the gorgeous spectacle of trees in bloom, runs through more than 20,000 acres of cultivated lands in the Nashoba belt. Visitors are invited to roam through the immense orchards as part of the festival.

One of a series of reports to the public on New England's share in the National Defense Program clears her decks for action!

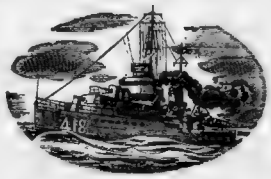
A GLORIOUS tradition spurs New England in her defense efforts for the United States Navy. From her shipyards during the Revolution, privateers rushed to hasten the victory. Down the ways in Joshua Humphrey's yard slid the Constitution to prove that Yankee design, plus Yankee seamanship, was unconquerable. Connecticut's Simon Lake, perfecter of the submarine, and Montpelier's George Dewey, admiral hero of Manila, are living forces today, speeding New England's share in the naval defense program.

As the nation relies on New England in time of need, skilled workmen and capable management are playing a mighty part in building and supporting a two-ocean navy. In the public interest we present here facts obtained from government and industrial sources as to the scope and progress of naval defense activity in this area.



FOR DEFENSE AT SEA

New England shipyards are already building 167 vessels, or one quarter of all defense ships now under construction—cargo vessels, mine sweepers, destroyers, subchasers, submarines, cruisers and battleships—and are employing over 35,000 men, with a pressing need for thousands more as additional ships are authorized.... Factories are producing turbines, super-chargers, electric steering gear, electric cable, engine parts, and countless other equipment and machinery... The Coast Guard Academy at New London is training twice the normal number of cadets.... During the past year more than three thousand New England volunteers joined the United States naval forces.

WHEN Moe Levisohn signed up Matt Senno, his boy, to fight Jimmy Sapillo, contender for the middleweight title, he had just gotten wise to Matt and he didn't care whether he got a good licking or not. As a matter of fact, he hoped he would.

Matt, Moe had learned after handling him six months, was a chiseller, an in-and-outer and a dog. He was a flashy boxer with a punch. If he had any character it would only be a question of time before he would have been champion. But Matt had no character and he had never grown up in his mind.

He was lazy and he hated to train and he dogged his training. He would start out on his five-mile morning jog and he would come back from it in time panting and wet with perspiration. But the chances were very good that he had ridden his jog in an automobile driven by a friend or by some dizzy doll who thought she was in love with him. Matt had quite a number of these on his string.

Matt was not above throwing a fight or "taking a dive" or "going into the tank," as the boys say in the fight racket, and Moe had learned on very good authority that Matt had done exactly that in his last fight, with Waxy Maxy Weintraub two months back.

He didn't mention it to Matt, but learning about it made him feel bad. He didn't like to think that a fighter of his would throw a fight without his knowing it. It was dishonest. Moe believed that if a fight was to be thrown or a fighter was to take a dive the manager and not the fighter was the one to handle it.

This throwing of the fight by Matt without consulting him was what made Moe decide that he was through handling the fighter. But he was sore at Matt besides because he had put a little bet down on him to win from Waxy, who really was a bum. Making him lose money that way, Moe considered, was adding injury to insult.

MOE'S SCHEME

That was why he signed Matt up to fight Jimmy Sapillo. The figured that Jimmy would hand his fighter a terrific shellacking because Jimmy was really good. True, if Matt would really train, Jimmy might have his troubles in beating him because Matt was very good, himself, when he wanted to be.

But Moe knew he wouldn't want to be. He'd train like he always did and he would enter the ring out of condition. And Sapillo would beat him. Then when he had done it, Moe would say to Matt, "Look, you chiselling tramp, you and me's through. I got this fight so you'd get the beating you got for double-crossing me with Waxy Weintraub. Now, you can go to some other manager. I'm through being a sucker for you." And that would be the end of Matt.

The louse, Moe thought. He had everything and he threw it away. He was a swell fighter and he wouldn't train. He had as pretty a wife, Elise, as any man could have, and he played around with any girl he could pick up.

Moe wondered whether Elise knew that Matt went around with other women. Sometimes, he thought she did. She was a pretty smart girl and not much got by her. But sometimes he thought she didn't. Women, Moe knew, when they were in love with a guy, were pretty dumb about things like that.

They never seemed to get wise. Maybe it was because Matt was half afraid of her and she knew it. She could get Matt to do anything. One word from her and he obeyed. Moe couldn't figure that out. Maybe it was conscience that made Matt do it, or maybe it was because Elise was smarter than he was, and he knew it.

Well, anyhow, Moe thought, Matt would get a fine shellacking and then he would throw him out, after telling him off, and that would square him for the money he lost when Matt lay down in his fight with Waxy Weintraub.

If Moe hadn't gotten drunk, Jimmy Sapillo would have given Matt Senno a beating that probably would have finished him as a fighter. Then Moe would have thrown Matt out of his management and whatever happened to Matt then would not have made much difference to either Moe or Elise Senno, Matt's wife. But Moe did get drunk.

It was over at Tony La-a's place. Tony had been a champ himself and sports and fight writers and managers hung out there. This night, Moe [illegible] would take out his little cannon and blast him, Moe, to death.

So he stood at the ringside and watched Matt go through the motions. Matt was a very good looking boy for a pug. He was blond and his broken nose and his high cheekbones and his thick lips all made him look very virile. Looking at them, you forgot to notice that his whole face was as loose as ashes. And Matt looked very good in the ring, too. He boxed nice and his footwork was nifty, like a dancer's. Only Moe noticed the puffs under his eyes and the little tire around his belly. A colored boy who was boxing with him landed a nice hard one in Matt's ribs and Matt grunted and got sore. He shot over a left hook, short and deadly, and the colored boy dropped like a stuffed dummy. Matt certainly could hit.

Realizing it didn't make Moe feel any better because he knew that Jimmy Sapillo wouldn't be the colored boy. He would be an experienced fighter and he would also be in condition and Matt wouldn't. And you have to be in condition to throw a hard punch after you've fought three-four rounds.

Moe was conscious that something was drumming in his head, like the wheels when you're riding on a train. He listened to the drumming and it finally came out, "Churchy la famme. Churchy la famme." It meant, "Look for the woman. Look for the woman" and it didn't mean anything. All of a sudden. Moe thought of Elise, Matt's wife. And it gave him a little hope.

He found Elise at the Flanders apartment hotel where she and Matt lived and he laid his story on the line. But Elise wasn't interested.

"Moe," she said, "I know you're a good guy and I'm sorry you're in a spot depending on that bum But I've just found out that he's been two-timing me with a girl from a burlesque house and I'm washing him out and brushing him off."

"Look, Elsie," Moe said earnestly, "them five hundred smackers don't mean nothing to me if I win, but if I lose they may mean my life. Now, if you're brushing that bum off, you could use five hundred dollars, couldn't you? All right. If Matt wins, the dough is yours."

"I'm in," Elise said, "I will need dough, all right."

ELISE SETTLES IT

So she started right in on Matt. It was three weeks to the fight and she became his shadow. She was on his heels every minute except when he went to bed. Even then, she slept in another bed between him and the door. She borrowed Moe's car and she drove Matt up to the park every morning. She rode beside him while he did his five miles. He got away from her one night and met the girl who was crazy about him at the time. They were getting into a cab when Elise stepped past Matt and took a sock at the other woman. The other woman ran away and Elise slapped Matt's face and took him back to the Flanders with her.

On the day of the fight, Matt looked like a million but he was as mean as a bear with a sore tooth. Just before the fight, he said to Elise.

"You made a laughing stock out of me and now I'm going to make one out of you. I know that Moe got you to make me train so as he wouldn't lose five hundred dollars he's bet on me to win. So now I'm crossing you both up. I'm taking a dive."

But Elise smiled sweetly at him.

"O. K., wise guy," she said, "but I thought of that, too. Remember that fifteen hundred dollars we had in a joint account? Well, it ain't there any more. I bet it this morning. At one to five that you'd knock out Sapillo. If you win, you get the fifteen hundred back. I'll keep the forty-five hundred myself. If you dive you kiss your dough goodby. And me, too, only you ain't kissing me. Your through two-timing me, Baby. I'm getting a divorce. But in the meantime use your own judgment."

Matt knocked out Jimmy Sapillo in two minutes, 40 seconds of the first round. When the referee raised his hand, he jumped out of the ring and bounced into a taxi with his robe still around his fighting trunks. He found Elsie at the Flanders. She was counting the money she'd won. He begged her to give him another chance and when she weakened, he dressed and he and she went to Moe and persuaded him to keep Matt under his management. The experts say Matt is going to be the next middleweight champion.

THE END.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, MAY 9, 1941

STRIKES in our defense production plants are a "bottleneck" out of which we may try to pull our heads when it is too late—as was the case in France, which lost her war with Germany mainly because she would not inaugurate compulsory arbitration in her defense industries.

The National Association of Manufacturers has just issued a pertinent and thought-provoking report.

Here are the figures—figures that apply both to "defense" and "non-defense" industries, although ALL production today must be counted as defense production.

In the first three months of 1941, man-days lost as a result of strikes totalled 3,022,918, of which 1,577,918 were in defense industries.

In March alone, 1,480,150 man-days were lost in strikes, against a total of 905,000 for the entire first quarter of 1940.

The record for the first six months of last year disclosed that 202,000 workers had been idle 2,469,000 days because of strikes, whereas in the second half the days lost rose to 4,031,000 days for 373,000 workers.

The toll of walkouts in defense industries was 357,000 man-days in January of this year, 410,614 man-days in February and 810,202 man-days in March.

This was a SIXTY-FOUR per cent increase in the first six months of defense production.

CONVINCING PROOF that this idleness was unnecessary is shown by the peaceful settlement of wage differences between the Crucible Steel Company of America, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and their employes.

These settlements involved seventy-five thousand workers, who received wage increases of more than thirteen million dollars.

That was done by ARBITRATION.

Not a day was wasted in fruitless squabbling.

President Roosevelt has emphasized this strike menace over and over.

We are daily confronted with newer and greater strikes.

Yet NOTHING IS DONE.

It seems that we have the right to order out boats to patrol the seven seas.

We have authority to install air and naval bases from Newfoundland to Argentina.

But we either have not the power—or will not use the power—to order peace in our defense industries and to make compulsory arbitration of all differences between employer and employe obligatory in those matters that aim straight at our vitals—STRIKES, which are so often fomented by Communists.

DISTINGUISHED LADIES are going to occupy an exclusively feminine Hall of Fame.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs has announced its selection of 53 women who represent the "great strides made by women in the past 50 years."

On the list are such well-known celebrities as Mary Pickford, Senator Hattie Caraway of Arkansas, Kate Smith, Ethel Barrymore, former Governor Nellie Tayloe Ross, Geraldine Farrar, Helen Keller, Evangeline Booth and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

These women have their fame assured.

Rare indeed is the person who cannot identify each at first glance.

Consequently, the action of the Women's Clubs is only ADDED glory for the award recipients.

Perhaps the energies of the Hall of Fame creators would be better and more usefully employed if they erected a simple shrine and placed a single statue on its altar.

Under the statue might be an inscription reading:

"Sacred to the memory of the typical American mother who, unhonored and unsung, raised her many sons and daughters in the image and likeness of God and taught them to love and serve their country."

MAINE PREDICTS the best summer in the history of its vacationland.

The State's effective publicity organization is calling the nation's attention to the fact that the Pine Tree playground is so blessed by nature that virtually any kind of holiday can be enjoyed within its borders.

Inland Maine has 2500 lakes and almost twice that number of rivers and streams, in addition to mountains, forest and farm lands.

And, of course, there is the magnificent coastline, generally conceded to be one of the most scenic in all North America.

Massachusetts could profitably take a leaf from Maine's book.

We, too, have an abundance of tourist attractions.

But of late we do not seem to be hearing much about them.

Love is kindest and hath most length,
The kisses are most sweet,
When it's enjoyed in the heat of strength,
Where like affections meet.
—Patrick Haney.

WHAT Mr. Haney had to say as above is well expressed. However, while it is good poetry it is not news. No doubt many a subscriber after reading it will feel like exclaiming: "You're telling me!" . . . "Did you ever see a blonde who didn't have big feet?" writes a brunette. "And how often do you see a good looking middle-aged blonde. They certainly fade fast, poor things" . . . "Wanda Hawley, erstwhile silent film star, is not as reported, married to any New York farmer," writes a Hollywoodian. "She is married to my ex-husband and is still in Hollywood. I was out to their house for dinner last night." It is interesting to know Wanda is still in Hollywood and also interesting to know some ex-wives occasionally have dinner with their ex-husband and his new wife . . . "I dress so quickly and am so often ready to start to leave before my husband that he calls me speedy," writes a justly proud subscriber. I feel this lady should write an article: "How to Be Dressed Before Your Husband." A thing such as that might do a lot of good.

SIDELIGHTS: Why is it the Navy is so much more popular with the feminine portion of the population than the Army? Has the uniform anything to do with it? Can it be that as the Navy enjoys feminine company only at intervals it is more appreciative? Is it because the Navy boys, having been away from places where money can be spent, have plenty to spend on the girls when they come ashore. Or what? . . . A great many women seem to smoke just to have something to do with their hands. Or because a cigarette makes them appear sophisticated or glamorous or something. Certainly many of them do not appreciate tobacco. Or why should they smoke a cigarette during a meal? It is an insult to the hostess and cook to smoke and eat at the same time.

PLEASE NOTE: California parents named their children so their first name spelled their initials as: Asa Saunders Anthony, Ira Rose Anthony, Ada Dora Anthony, Ora Rita Anthony, Eva Violet Anthony and Ola Lydia Anthony. Have been trying to figure a name for myself on that basis and so far the best first name I can get for myself is Jad, as in Jad Arthur Durling . . . "Feminine doctors," says a San Franciscan, "should be psychiatrists, diet specialists or experts on relations of health to beauty." A very good suggestion for women medical students and not so bad for men students to consider either. Chances for financial success, as well as an opportunity for service, are very good in aforementioned branches of medical practice.

ASIDES: Maybe that idea I had about cats being licensed wasn't so hot. If cats were licensed we would have to have cat catchers. Imagine a man trying to catch an unlicensed or stray cat that had climbed a tree . . . In some cities the health department does not inspect restaurant kitchens often enough. When you are making your first visit to a restaurant it's not such a bad idea to ask the manager to let you look at the kitchen. If restaurant patrons made this a practice it might inspire more eatery owners to have spotless kitchens . . . "That 'poem' by Swinburne you quoted is not the bitterest of all poems," writes a New Yorker." "Followiag by Sara Teasdale is it:

"When I am dead and over me bright April
Shakes out her rain-drenched hair;
Though you should lean above me broken-hearted
I shall not care.

"I shall have peace as leafy trees are peaceful,
When rain bends down the bough;
And I shall be more silent and cold-hearted
Than you are now."

PASSING BY: Jack Dempsey. Not the ex-mauler from Manassa but the showman. "As to whether or not there ever was a feminine ventriloquist," says he, "one of the best ventriloquists of all time was the feminine member of the vaudeville act of Walters and Walters. When a Keith-Orpheum booker, I considered Miss Walters the best ventriloquist available with Edgar Bergen second" . . . Ann Doran. Of the cinema. Her father was a Texas Ranger and her mother an actress. "So," says Ann to me, "according to you, my name is drab, non-glamorous and easy to forget. And therefore not good for a film actress. All right, you suggest a better one." I couldn't think of another at the moment. In fact, I haven't thought of one yet. How about helping out a poor guy who talks too much?

BRIEFLY: High on list of life's minor annoyances is hearing a mosquito buzzing around in the dark of your bedroom. Summer is just around the corner; what is the best preparation to take the itch out of a mosquito bite . . . A waitress of much experience in places catering to people from everywhere says the best tippers are from Detroit, Mich.; Pittsburgh, Pa., and San Francisco, Calif. The worst, in order named, are from San Antonio, Tex.; Portland, Ore., and Boston. Men, says she, are easier to serve than women because former make their minds up quickly as to what they want. Dishes most in demand in America's popular priced restaurants are roast beef, T bone steak, baked ham and fried chicken.

PRESIDENT'S MOTHER GLADLY POSES

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 9—At Tuesday night's dinner to Dorothy Thompson, a noted New York merchant approached Mrs. Sara Roosevelt, and told the President's mother: "If you'll pose for a picture with my mother—I'll contribute $500 to the Warm Springs Foundation" . . . "I'll be glad to pose with her, even if you don't contribute any money," said Mrs. Roosevelt . . . "Just for that, I'll contribute $1000," said the merchant. "And now I'll bring my mother here, for the picture" . . . "How old is your mother?" asked Mrs. Roosevelt . . . "92," said the merchant . . . "In that case," said the President's mother, rising to accompany him, "I'll go to her—because I'm younger" . . . The movement already is on to draft Rex Tugwell to a major post in the government service . . . The President now is drawing his executive order announced here some weeks ago—creating an economic and financial division of the OEM, to help wage economic warfare . . . Jack Dempsey will open a new restaurant, in addition to his present Broadway cafe. The site, on the East Side, already has been arranged. It will be called "The Manassa" . . . Paramount paid the final instalment yesterday on the $150,000 for the movie rights to Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Bill Elsworth returned from a trip to New Jersey and wrote to the police department, stating how easy it would be for a saboteur to blow up the Holland Tunnel. "Backing musical shows on Broadway isn't in my line," Mayer assured her. "But look—over there, at ringside—David Selznick. He's rich and might do it" . . . Ruth approached Selznick, and asked: "Will you give me $50,000, with which to do a show?" . . . "On what security?" asked Selznick . . . Ruth said, "Please don't change the subject" . . . Alfred J. McCosker, president of Station WOR and chairman of the board for the Mutual Broadcasting System, once aspired to be a songwriter. In 1925 he composed a song called "Give Me Your Answer." It was published by the Mills Music Co. and never attained the hit class . . . any of ASCAP's publishers aren't introducing any new tunes now, as a result of the fight against BMI. And so Mills recently decided to revive "Give Me Your Answer" . . . McCosker, who supervises so many radio stations, couldn't have this, his own song, played—because it's an ASCAP song. And so last week he persuaded Irv Carroll, bandleader at Jack Dempsey's, to use it on Carroll's Friday broadcast for WMCA—one of the few stations playing ASCAP tunes.

"I'm sorry," he finally told the playwright, "but I have so many engagements on my calendar—I can see you on the morning of June 7" . . . The playwright hesitated and said, "I can't make it June 7" . . . "Why not?" asked the producer . . . "On June 7," was the explanation, "I've got to go to a funeral."

LISTEN, WORLD!

by ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE DOESN'T understand what's happened to her. She used to be so full of fire . . . interested in everything . . . eager, curious, enthusiastic. And now she rarely gives a hoot what happens.

No, she isn't ill. Nor trapped in some tragedy. She's married, has a charming home and a devoted husband. And has just passed her fortieth birthday. Nothing, seemingly, has changed in her environment.

"Yet I feel as if I were dead inside! she wails. "I can't get excited about anything. Of course I pretend to be but, inside, I feel as if I were filled with ashes."

And you probably are, lady. Which same unhappy condition prevails in about 90 per cent of us who have passed forty, or even thirty-five. We feel the fires have died down—because they have. They've died down because we did not realize we must keep them going.

WE AMERICANS think that pep is our heritage. We're born into a whoopee program . . . carried along by its vim. We're go-getters before we cut our first teeth, and we naturally assume we're always going to be that way. But we aren't, unless we get on the job ourselves.

FOR YOU CAN'T KEEP THE HOME FIRES BURNING UNLESS YOU DO YOUR OWN STOKING.

Life doesn't stay colorful and exciting unless we keep it so. Everything is interesting to a youngster with fresh, inexperienced nerves. But each new impression dulls those responses a little . . . takes the edge off those bubbling emotions and eager interests. Then, inevitably, comes the time when we must renew the interest, re-create the enthusiasm, keep the fires going.

Only, unfortunately, no one has told us that this time must come.

IS THIS hitting you where you live? It should . . . particularly now. For never has it been easier to let the fires die than in this dreadful year of 1941. Like a pestilence, the mark of despair rises above us, the blight of fear and frustration descends upon us. We don't know where we are going or what we'll do after we get there.

What's it all about? Is anything worth while? Constantly these questions toll in our minds. Slowly the bright fires of youth die out in our questing hearts.

DON'T LET THEM DIE!

EVEN IF THESE ARE FRIGHTFUL TIMES, ONE CAN LIVE BUOYANTLY, ABUNDANTLY. NEVER WAS LIFE SO FULL OF ACTION AND INTEREST . . . NEVER DID IT OFFER SUCH NEED OF SYMPATHY AND TOLERANCE.

Snap out of those glooms! Stop wallowing in those memories! If you're dying on your feet, it's your own fault. Get up and get out into the enormous show that's boiling all around you. Fires dying out?

THEN FOR PETE'S SAKE GIVE THEM FUEL!

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Thursday—It was nice to meet Miss Thompson again yesterday in Chicago. After a morning spent at the hotel, we went to the WPA household training center. This training center for colored girls has done a wonderful piece of work and I feel sure has proven of great value to the community.

At 3:15 we went to the Southside Community Art Center to dedicate their building. From there we made our plane to New York City very comfortably.

Chicago has long been a center of Negro art. Many Negro artists have had a hard time getting their training and have starved, as many artist do, even when they have achieved a certain amount of recognition. The art center is situated in the old home of Charles Comiskey. There are classes in drawing, oil and water color painting, poster design, lettering and composition. Gradually the teaching of some of the crafts and other skills will be added. It was all a most delightful experience.

NOW I WANT to talk to you for a little while on a subject which has long been on my mind, namely: The improvement in our schools of physical education, instruction and guidance in healthful living, a wider recreational use of school facilities and the development of school camps. All these purposes are gathered together in a bill sponsored by Mr. Pius L. Schwert, a member of Congress from the 42nd district from New York State.

He suggests the appropriation of certain sums of money to be distributed to the various states for these purposes. I hope that in New York State this summer, there will be some camps for high school students under the guidance of the school system. I feel that the draft is proving to us that our young people are not receiving the proper medical care or adequate diet for the best possible physical development and the schools can do much to improve the situation.

GENE RAYMONDS IN 'SMILIN' THRU'

By Louella O. Parsons

Gene Raymond

HOLLYWOOD, May 9—Fine thing that after all these years of wanting Gene Raymond in one of her pictures Jeanette MacDonald has to get shot by him in "Smilin' Thru." Yes, at long last Gene and Jeanette are to be in the same picture, for today M-G-M and Director Frank Borzage chose him to play the role of the jealous lover—and later on, the father, in Jeanette's movie. Now all the people who have been writing to me about seeing Mr. and Mrs. Mac Raymond (as they call themselves) together, can relax and wait for the picture to be released.

These husband and wife teamings on the screen have always provided interesting debates. Some people felt that it destroys the romantic illusion and others think real life lovers are very convincing. However, there will be little love making for Gene and Jeanette in "Smilin' Thru" for Brian Aherne is her "choice" in the movie.

"THE GREAT DIVIDE," one of the most successful stage plays in its day, has been made into movies twice and now it's headed for a third term. The old First National made it as a silent picture in 1925 with Alice Terry, Conway Tearle and Wallace Beery. In 1929 Warners made it as a talkie with Dorothy Mackaill, Myrna Loy and Ian Keith. Now in 1941, William Vaughn Moody's original play will be revised and given a more modern slant by Warners. Jane Wyman, who one of these days is going to get the recognition due her as a very able little comedienne, will have the feminine lead, with Faith Dorn in the second lead. Dennis Morgan has the important male lead, and believe me, it is important. Henry Miller and Margaret Anglin were in the original stage play.

THE MARGARET SULLAVAN-CHARLES BOYER combination in "Back Street" was sufficiently potent to warrant an encore. Maggie, who took time out to have her third child, will return to the screen June 15 in "Heart Beat" (even rhymes with "Back Street") A Bruce Manning production with Felix Jackson, who has worked with Manning on so many of his pictures, writing the adaptation. I was curious about the story "Heart Beat" which was authored by an unknown and worked into a whale of an idea in Charlie Feldman's office. I hear it is a highly dramatic story in which Maggie and Mons. Boyer will have a chance to tear out the hearts of everybody including the exhibitors who just love these two in sob stories.

JIMMY WALKER, just as good looking, just as debonair and just as full of ideas as he was in the old days when he was Mayor of New York, is in Hollywood. Jimmy is here for a cloak and suit convention, attending all their meetings and working hard. He says he can't even talk movies until the end of the session. I'll be surprised if one of the producers doesn't buy the story of his life which I understand he has written, or some other movie isn't made to keep him in Hollywood.

Dwarf's Growth Speeded By Hormone Treatment

By C. B. LAL
International News Service Science Editor

NEW YORK, May 8 (INS)—Dwarfed identical twins have been made to grow rapidly in height, with a hormone treatment, by Dr. George B. Dorff of the Bellevue Hospital here, it was learned today.

The hormone is produced in the human body by the pituitary gland.

Dr. Droff's most dramatic and convincing result was obtained in a pair of boys, identical twins, born from the same "fertilized egg," both "dwarfed and infantile."

From birth, probably through heredity, not only were the boys very slow to grow in height, they were also "infantile," that is, like 2 to 5-year-old children even after the age of seven.

But one of the twins was slightly taller than the other one: at the age of 7 years and 6 months, the taller boy was 3 feet and 7 inches high; the shorter brother was 3 feet, 6¼ inches in stature.

In order to hasten their development the identical twin dwarfs were fed thyroid gland preparations. In four years, each of the twins grew seven and one-half inches, while the taller remained relatively taller than his brother.

At the age of 12 years and three months, Dr. Dorff began the new treatment with the gonadrotropin hormone on the shorter twin.

The result was that in one year, the shorter boy grew much faster than his twin brother.

At the age of 13 years and 3 months, the whole situation was completely reversed. The former taller boy was now markedly shorter.

The hormone treatment increased the shorter dwarf's growth by four inches in one year; the untreated boy grew only one inch and a quarter in the same time.

The general haturation of the hormone treated boy was also markedly greater than of his twin

Drs. Fuller Albright, Charles H. Burnett, William Parson and others of the Massachusets General Hospital, Boston, have used on children and adults, all males, another hormone—testosterone propionate for hastening growth, with good results.

Hub Pupils Get Penny Milk

After approval by the Agriculture Department at Washington, Greater Boston school officials today prepared to extend a program under which penny milk will be distributed to some 80,000 children in low-income districts.

A half pint of milk would be made available daily for one cent for children able to pay and free to those unable to pay in both public and parochial schools.

The Agriculture Department would contribute a subsidy payment to be determined by bids from distributors who would supply the milk.

BAY STATE, QUOTA FULL, EXEMPT IN NEW DRAFT

The Bay State will be exempt in the 11th draft call starting June 2, selective service officials here said today.

Because Massachusetts has filled its quota by voluntary enlistments, the state will not have to contribute any men in the call for 1756 New Englanders, they explained.

All other New England states will supply selectees, with Connecticut furnishing 983.

At Ft. Devens, official orders disclosed that as many as 97 per cent of the men stationed there will take leaves over the Mother's Day week-end.

Heretofore, it has been Army custom to keep at least five per cent of the company on duty at all times. The new order cuts the percentage to three for the holiday.

Officers at Camp Edwards, meanwhile, were setting the stage for what promises to be the biggest military show in recent New England history.

By way of saying "farewell" to Maj Gen. James A. Woodruff, some 19,000 officers and men of the celebrated Yankee Division will stage a night review at the camp on May 29.

Gen. Woodruff, commander of the First Corps Area, is to retire from active duty in June.

It will be the first review of the YD boys at war strength since the days of World War 1. The public is invited.

Massed searchlight batteries of the 36th Coast Artillery (AA) Brigade will make the night like day and the troops will parade on Logan Field with full equipment, including its motorized units. The review is expected to take two hours.

This Makes You 'Anti-Alcoholic'!

ALCOHOLISM HAS LONG BEEN one of the saddest of human ailments.

Now science comes along with a novel and ingenious method to make us "sick" of habitual drinking.

The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with this coming Boston Sunday Advertiser, goes behind the scenes of the latest treatment for chronic alcoholics to tell you all about it.

Fully 97 per cent of those who undergo this course of "anti-alcoholic conditioning" abstain from intoxicating liquors for at least six months, and after a year 67 per cent are still avoiding a cocktail as though it were a time-bomb.

CITIZENSHIP DAY STAGE SHIFTED TO ESPLANADE

The stage for Citizenship Day on Sunday, May 18, was enlarged today because of the great response of Greater Bostonians.

Originally scheduled for the Fenway Stadium, the affair instead will be held at the Hatch Memorial Shell on the Esplanade, officials said.

Frank Flannagan, director of the Americanization Bureau at City Hall, in charge of the program for "I Am An American Day" as it has been entitled by Governor Saltonstall in a proclamation, decided on the change of location, believing some 50,000 persons will be present.

Immigration and naturalization officials are sending invitations to thousands of new citizens, and the event is expected to be the greatest demonstration of patriotism Boston has ever seen.

Every phase of American life will be represented, including labor, industry, the church, the home, courts and county, town, city and State governments.

PLAN PAGEANT

There will be a pageant showing the highlights of American history and the making of a new citizen. There will be patriotic addresses, patriotic songs by a male chorus and massing of the colors as a finale with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Already five musical organizations have offered their services, and it is hoped that color guards may be obtained from both the Army and Navy for the occasion, together with the Marine Corps.

Purpose of the observance is to afford an opportunity to thousands of citizens to pledge anew their allegiance to the United States.

Mayor Tobin said the observance was "a day of recognition and rededication to the principle and basic high ideal of American citizenship."

AID NEEDED

Governor Saltonstall, pointing out that in these times the value of American citizenship increases many fold said:

"If we are all to enjoy the safety and freedom which our nation offers us, our government needs the aid of every citizen—young or new or old—regardless of the country of his origin."

Tonight Director Flannagan will meet in the City Council chamber with representatives of various organizations, to discuss plans for the celebration. It was announced that in case of rain the program will be held either in Faneuil Hall or Boston Garden.

Public, parochial and private schools are planning an observance on Friday, May 16. A copy of the governor's proclamation has been sent to every school in the State, and teachers will arrange their own celebrations.

It is planned to extend a special welcome to residents who during the past year have become citizens.

You Can Be Beautiful

New 'Magic Powder Box'

By ARLINE GOULD

NOW WHY didn't someone think of this before! A new "magic powder box" has just arrived . . . which yields rouge and lipstick, too . . . so there's no scrambling through dressing table or desk drawers when you get ready to put on your face!

It's by way of a special, too . . . a "while they last" introductory special for Spring . . . for the whole complexion set is but $1 . . . including the stunning peach and copper powder box.

Through the cellophane top of the box you can glimpse the generous-size lipstick and cake of rouge. Lift the cover and you'll find beneath the platform holding the two rouges a full size box of a deliciously-scented face powder!

You can easily see that this buy will put within your reach that second . . . or third . . . lipstick which you covet, to provide you with the subtly flattering "right" shade with different hats or accessories. You'd be surprised how conscious everyone is these days of "off" shades . . . and how they applaud a perfect match twixt hat and lips!

There's more than delicious scent to the powder, too . . . it is undoubtedly one of the velvetiest-textured, lightest powders that's ever clung to your skin.

There are five matched shades of lipstick and rouge available . . . a fruity lush tint . . . a deep jungle red . . . a bright clear red . . . a rosy coral shade for pastels . . . and raspberry, which is always stunning.

To learn about this limited-time special on face powder, rouge and lipstick for $1, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Study Shorthand in Your Own Home

THIS GIRL is independent. You too can make a stenographer's job start you on a real career.

The means to many a girl's independence—the stenographer's notebook! The work is steady, the pay good and often a stenographer's post gives you a start in a business in which you'd like a real career.

You can easily teach yourself shorthand in your spare time. Then when you can say that you know how to take dictation, how much happier the task of job-hunting! No waiting hours for an interview only to be told, "Sorry, we have no jobs for unskilled workers!"

Pitman shorthand, you learn, is based on the sounds of words, not on their spelling. Instead of writing out a word letter by letter, you just write brief symbols for the way it sounds. "Quoting" is a curved line plus a short stroke. "Price" is a curlycue with a tiny "r" above.

There aren't many sounds in the language, so you won't have any trouble learning all the symbols. Set aside a little time each day for practice and have a friend dictate to you so you'll get used to associating sounds and symbols.

Before long you'll be taking real office-speed dictation.

Join the ranks of the skilled workers for whom there is always a demand! Our 40-page booklet, Pitman Shorthand Self-Taught, teaches you the Pitman system in easy step-by-step lessons. Includes word signs, phrase forms and exercises to help you write accurate and speedy shorthand.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, Pitman Shorthand Self-Taught, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th st., New York, N. Y.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

How times have changed! I can remember my little grandmother hurrying to a corset sale, trying one on OVER her coat, and proclaiming it a perfect fit. Nowadays, a corset is fitted more meticulously than a tailor-made suit.

When you shop for a girdle, Ruth Merzon, fashionable New York designer, urges that you take your time so the proper adjustments can be made—"because the fit is everything. The best plan is to get a garment that feels comfortable across the largest portion of the figure and have it taken in where necessary."

If yours is the normal figure, Miss Merzon says the girdle will add about an inch to your waistline. That increase is to be expected, she says, and it allows for a much smoother distribution of weight than when the figure is nipped in to get the wasp-waisted effect of a couple of years back.

ROOM NECESSARY

Take her advice and see to it that you have plenty of sitting room. The average figure spreads at least eight inches in sitting. The heavy-thighed figure spreads even more. There should be enough elasticity in the lower edge of the girdle to comfortably accommodate the spread of the figure and the girdle should be long enough that it doesn't creep up.

With heavy thighs, better proportion can be achieved by wearing a bra which adds slightly to the bust measurement—and more about that later. On the other hand, the top-heavy figure appears better proportioned with a girdle that makes the waistline a trifle smaller and lets the hips appear a fraction larger.

Ordinarily, this authority declares there is just one reason for boning: It keeps the garment from rolling. But when the abdomen is very large, a "break" may occur in the front line when the wearer is seated unless boning is used across the stomach.

Now, about bras. I thought I had seen everything. But the latest inovation for the flat-chested girls has certainly made me open my eyes. This little build-up is ingeniously fashioned of flesh colored, perforated lastex and is being sewn right into bathing suits, slips and evening gowns. There's not a chance for the padding to slip or to become detached and it is considered vastly superior to the "old-fashioned" ruffled contrivances which were pinned on.

WHAT NEXT!

This idea of building the foundation garment into one's clothes is quite the neatest trick fashion has to offer. Bathing suits are being equipped with built-in bras, or designed with bra tops that serve the purpose. The use of lastex in swim suits turns these togs into curve controlling costumes. What next!

For the heavy figure, there is a gadget called a "separator" which affords support and gives a better contour to the bust. If you are heavily upholstered through this area, it is suggested that you try a long brassiere which comes down over your girdle top, or use a "cummerbund" between girdle and bra to smooth out the roll.

A good foundation is a great help—but still "Posture Makes the Figure." You may also need to "Streamline the Midsection." There are leaflets by those names for which you can send. In writing for this material please enclose large stamped return envelope.

Love and Marriage

Wife Fears Husband's Old Sweetheart

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been married for several years to a man I believe is in love with a girl he knew before he met me. It nearly drives me crazy thinking about it and there isn't anyone I can confide in except you. Others would listen, then pity and then tell it to the next one.

He tells me he loves me and owes all his success to me, but he is so cold and indifferent. He sits and thinks so much, but says he loves me and can't help the way he acts. He hasn't one bad habit. I only wish I could die before he does, so he can marry this other girl and be happy.

Would you advise me to ignore his moods, because seeing him so moody nearly wrecks my whole nervous system? He never goes out without me, and is a good provider. ALYSE.

Perhaps there is not one married women in 50 who has not had some such experience as yours, my dear Alyse. And please let me say that you're doing your best to make a very ordinary situation into a domestic tragedy. Certainly ignore his moods, ignore the whole situation; even if your heart is heavy as lead act as if this other woman doesn't exist. Easier said than done, you'll say, and I'll agree. But it's as foolish for a woman to hand over a husband to another without a safe and sane struggle as if she were to offer her the deeds to her house.

He says he loves you—owes his success to you. Likely, then, it's only a question of time before he'll get over his sentimental romance with the old sweetheart. Meanwhile, go to the beauty parlor, get some attractive clothes, try to be gay, amusing, interested, and the rival will vanish like a wraith. Good luck to you.

Hoping His Fiancee Is a Good Cook

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My girl friend sent me a mighty good fruitcake and told me that you gave her the recipe. I thought you were strictly a lovelorn specialist and didn't know you told them how to make cakes. The cake was O. K., but not by cakes alone does a young couple manage to live.

What do you know about hash, biscuits and good coffee? The girl I marry has got to be proficient in all these things.

My girl and I are engaged, and I'm hoping she's a good cook.

SOLDIER.

The world would be more lovelorn than it is at the present time if girls didn't manage to cheer up home with biscuits, hash, coffee, not to mention "Poor Man's Fruit Cake."

Your girl might write to me for my Sunday Night Supper leaflet, which takes into account biscuits and other things, but doesn't mention hash. Hash is easy and anyone who can make "Poor Man's Fruit Cake" can certainly turn out hash to make a young man forget the hash compounded by his boarding-house cook.

She's Married to 'Bachelor at Heart'

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been married for six years to a man who is a bachelor at heart. He still continues to lead the carefree life of a man who is heart-whole and fancy-free. Before we were married he couldn't do enough for me. My slightest wish was law, and he often told me he didn't want to live if I wouldn't marry him.

Ever since we returned from our honeymoon, we have lived in a small apartment, furnished in bad taste, and with everything except our presents belonging to another person. I want a home of my own where I can have a garden, I want children, and prefer to have my own furniture around me. My husband insists we can't afford them, but I know we can.

He goes off to the club and plays golf every week-end, sometimes has his dinner there, or at the house of some friend, and doesn't seem to think of me as his wife. To him I'm just a sort of landlady, a place where he hangs his hat. He's close about money, and doesn't even give me enough for carfare at times.

DISSATISFIED.

I don't wonder this young woman is dissatisfied. Most girls marry for companionship, homes, love, children. This girl hasn't been able to get any of these from her bachelor husband. And no one would blame her if she did something desperate.

This man probably thinks he's an excellent husband because he keeps a roof over his wife's head and doesn't let her starve. But he's not playing the game fairly, and I hope he'll turn over a new leaf.

Introducing Speaker

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would appreciate your sending to me at this time a proper form of introduction for the following:

As a member of the group (I secured the speaker's services, by the way) I have to introduce a guest speaker to a discussion group. A man of broad cultural achievements, he is to dwell on topics of international importance. The group in question is one interested in topics tending to enhance cultural background.

Please tell me what to say when introducing him.

READER.

The first sentence of your introduction might be something like this: "With very special pleasure I have the honor of introducing to you the guest speaker of this evening. Doctor Geoffrey Armbruster," or "I have great pleasure in introducing Doctor Geoffrey Armbruster," or, "I am very happy to have the privilege of introducing to you our distinguished speaker of the evening."

You will, of course, make a point of saying these welcoming words with all graciousness.

After this first bow of welcome, it would be natural to say something about the tremendous present significance and importance of the international topics that you and the group are studying. Then, briefly, refer to the speaker's special qualifications to discuss these topics. Your audience will want to be informed of the speaker's background.

When the speaker has finished, say something appreciative about his talk—that it was stimulating, instructive, that it inspiringly revealed many topics for the future study of the group.

Mother's Day Cake---But Let Someone Else Bake It

By MARTHA LEE

MOTHERS' DAY is probably the most popular of our new holidays. It's a typical home day when family and relatives honor the little woman who has kept things going for so many years.

If you are far away on Mother's Day a long letter may have to suffice. If you are at home, you can help Mother's Day to be a day of rest. Arrange to take over the entire work of the house, so if Mother does her own as well as your work, she will have nothing to do.

As Mother's Day comes on Sunday you can have breakfast late, see that Mother is properly taken to church if she wants to go there—or if not, that she is taken for a walk or a ride, and that she does not return until dinner time. This can all be done by planning before hand, apportioning to each member of the family his special job.

GIFTS FOR MOTHER

If taking the work away from her doesn't mean anything, then arrange for an entertainment for her—have some friends drop in for tea, take her for a long ride, or do something that you know she will like. If it isn't possible or feasible to do this, be sure you send her a gift, or flowers, something which will make her know you have remembered her very special day.

Most mothers have spent hours and hours in the kitchen, making and baking all kinds of delicious foods for their families. Wouldn't they, just for the sheer novelty and joy of it, be thrilled with a gorgeous cake which someone else had baked in a new glass casserole? Imagine the sparkle in Mother's eye as she cuts into a perfectly grand cake made from a new recipe.

MOTHER'S DAY CAKE

2-3 cup seedless raisins
½ cup chopped walnut kernels
¼ cup finely cut citron
¼ cup finely cut candied cherries (rinse before cutting)
1 cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
4 eggs
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
2 tbsp. unsweetened cocoa
2 tbsp. coffee infusion
1 tsp. lemon extract

Rinse raisins, drain, dry on a towel and slice fine. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream thoroughly. Add eggs that have been beaten until very thick and creamy, and beat until blended. Add flour sifted with soda and salt, and mix. Divide batter into two parts. To one, add raisins, nut kernels, vanilla, and cocoa moistened in the coffee, and stir until blended. To remaining part, add citron, cherries and lemon extract, and stir until blended. Oil a 1½-quart casserole. Put batter into casserole, alternating a portion of the dark and of the light. Cover and bake in a slow oven (300 deg. F.) about 2 hours. Let stand covered until cool. Frost and decorate top as desired.

This recipe has been developed to please the exacting taste of mothers and has been planned and carefully tested for baking in a covered glass dish. The baking dish, by the way, provides a lasting gift—the cake a transitory but delightful one.

Our Austen Lake in England

By AUSTEN LAKE
(STAFF REPORTER, BOSTON AMERICAN)
(Copyright, 1941)

LONDON, May—Heroes of this war are not always those who fight in English skies, or patrol Channel waters, or man invasion defenses. Heroes are also those who stifle sufferings silently in the caverns of their souls—the wives and relatives of Britain's "living dead," prisoners of war who exist in Nazi internment camps and wait through daily eternities. How long and for what? The prisoners are all young men in full flower. The wives are young, too. In Europe's mad roulette their portion is heart-withering bitterness.

I learned about Mrs. Betty Higgon, wife of a Welsh Guard interne, who edits the world's most unique journal; a weekly compendium of letters received from the regiment's prisoners and as wistful a saga as this world-disaster can offer. I went to Scolton, Haverfordwest and found a wispy, prematurely old little woman with a faraway manner of gazing through and beyond you as though searching some unseen horizon. I found that a common trait of nearly all war prisoners' wives.

Mrs. Higgon gave me a copy of her latest journal, a multigraphed, typewritten folio which digested the correspondence received from Germany—some of it delayed for weeks, some quite recent, some written with forced gaiety, some with grim stoicism and all with an undertone of devouring home hunger.

DEVELOPS HABITS

Wrote Lieut. Cas Johns-Mortimore from Oflag VII C-H, the Nazi designated address:

"I have developed several habits that you might find curious. For example, I smell every potato before eating it, search the seams of my clothing, insist on shaving and eating from the same bowl, trim my nails with a razor blade and remove gravel from my cabbage water with a quick tilt of the bowl. It has started to snow again . . ."

The excerpts are all homilies like that with heart messages between the lines. Johns-Mortimore adds: "... when we arrived, lacking green stuffs, we ate all the dandelions and nettles on our exercising ground."

Chat invariably revolves around food and creature comforts, querulous requests for the basic simplicities.

"I am ashamed," writes Capt. Ion Garnett-Orme, since dead, "of my letters screaming for food, but you have no idea how low we were after our march here. My pulse was 52 for a month and our doctors were most interested, but could do nothing. I dreamed of a good meal every night, most tantalising. We live in a long, wooden hut, 90 in a group. It keeps the room warm . . ."

Oddly, the Nazi censors have allowed much that is revealing to filter through, perhaps with an eye to encouraging shipments of food and materials from abroad as a means of obviating their own responsibilities.

Writes Lieut. Peter Hanbury:

"I was given the 18 R. M. (Reichsmarks) that you sent me. You can't imagine the difference this money will make. I shall buy a blanket so to be warm at night when it snows . . . We have written all over the world for parcels, as eight boiled potatoes and two watery soups a day are not enough to keep one warm and cheery."

NAZI PUNISHMENTS

Nazi punishments, too, apparently are meted out for unmentioned misdemeanors, reported in the tone of a small boy who wouldn't eat his spinach, viz., the stoic, half-humor of Lieut. Ralph Pilcher as he says:

"Sorry I couldn't write you last week. I was spending a fortnight in the spare room (solitary confinement). I have not been very popular lately . . . I have been feeding very well on bread and water and an odd soup every few days. It is extraordinary what one can live on. I hope to be out of this room before the population question becomes too acute . . . About the ninth day in the "spare room" a Baron V. S. came to see me as he had often done before the war in England. He could give me little comfort. We wait every day in the hopes of getting letters. I think thousands of them have been scrapped. I saw some lying in gutters when I was in Belgium."

The moral tone of the men, although the effort at buoyancy is often artificial, seems good; their hope of victory steadfast. Here again, as in all this writer's tour of England, there is no defeatist note.

"We were all captured under fantastic military circumstances," writes Capt. Charles Janson, a well-known English pianist in pre-war times, "but we are prepared to remain here for years, so long as we win the war. This we recognize is only a matter of time."

Or Maj. Archie Noel's optimistic opening:

"I have a feeling that it will end sooner than we think, especially with things going as they are in the Mediterranean. The news of Bardia (Ed. note: Since recaptured by Italian-Nazi troops) is wonderful . . . If I've done nothing else, I've improved my bridge. I am doing all the scenery and acting a part in a play we have got going, Galsworthy's 'Escape.'" And then, at the end of his note, a lapse into melancholia, when he writes, "I hope this won't last too long. The possibility of having to stay in this condition is enough to drive one nuts."

According to international law, war prisoners are supposed to be fed the same rations as those furnished the capturing [illegible] troops. Thus, in Canada, Dominion soldiers are given 12 ounces of meat a day and a correspondingly generous ration of condiments, vegetables, etc. The German internes fare better than those of England, where the army ration is smaller. However, from the tone of British prisoners' letters from Germany, it would appear either that they are not receiving the legal food allotments of their captors, or the German army ration is meager and anemic.

"Overcrowding and an excess of cabbage water are the worst things here, writes Lieut. Billy Malcolm. "English tea, rarely seen, is a godsend, just like cocktails, and makes everyone chatty and cheerful. Glad Roosevelt has been elected. Hope he gets on with the job. Poor old Neville Chamberlain. We are getting some great coats, old Belgian and Polish ones, dyed a bright green. Those of us who have them look like the male chorus from a Ruritanian musical show. Some have patches where bullets appear to have passed. Not a very pleasant thought . . ."

VERY FEW ESCAPE

There have been, I am told, very few escapes by British prisoners from Nazi camps in this war, due to distant frontiers and the tendency of Nazi patrols to shoot escapees without court-martial. A Maj. Duffield squirmed across the Swiss frontier and was incarcerated by border guards. A sergeant named Peter Waddell miraculously worked his way through myriad terrors to the Dalmatian coast and is, according to newspaper report, serving with the Near East forces. That is all!

Apparently the administration of Nazi prison camps is left to the conscience of controlling officers who, according to their human leanings, are sometimes indulgent and sometimes rigid. Lieut. Henry Coombs-Tennant seems to have fared better than average in his Oflag, reporting "two pianos here and plenty of music. I am attacking Beethoven Sonatas in earnest. We get coffee (sic) in the morning and meals of potatoes and soup at 11 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. and bread for supper, supplemented with periodical issues of skimmed milk, cheese and oleo . . . The weather is lovely, we are very fortunate as to scenery and many of us sunbathe on a plot called the green park."

Another prisoner, who is merely called Harry, writes whimsically:

"We h..ve the best of everything, an amazing quantity of good quality food and all the warm clothing we require. Life is ample and entertaining. Tell this to the Navy. Tell it to the Army and above all, tell it to the Marines." The inference is obvious!

Weekly as the latest batch of letters come in, Mrs. Higgon types, multigraphs them and mails them out to pitiable subscribers—hungering words that, briefly, bridge the distance between two opposite worlds. It is as though fungus blight had been put upon their lives and they go through mechanical gestures which have no spiritual motivation. Waiting! Waiting! How long, and for what?

'Reaching for Sun' Opens at Met

McCrea, Drew Co-Starred

By PEGGY DOYLE

Producer-Director William Wellman, who has been responsible for such topflight productions as "Wings," "Nothing Sacred," "Beau Geste" and "A Star Is Born," gets grounded in the Met's new screen offering, "Reaching for the Sun."

The picture co-stars Joel McCrea and Ellen Drew and features Eddie Bracken and Albert Dekker. Of the foursome, the one-time juvenile comic of "Brother Rat," "What A Life" and "Too Many Girls," the cowlicked Bracken has the best of it.

Bracken plays a screwy auto worker and pal of McCrea's, the latter portraying a country bumpkin who marries city-gal Ellen Drew. McCrea originally had deserted his backwoods for Detroit and its auto plants for the sole purpose of earning sufficient money to buy an outboard motor. With an outboard motor in his fishing smack, the gawky fisherman hopes to be able to snare more clams.

The matter of the alienating motor doesn't come up until the nuptial night, which occasion inspires some totally uninspired and coarse wisecracks that do nothing to develop your interest.

The picture is keyed to the fist fight between McCrea and Dekker, a no-punches-pulled affair, but somehow it fails to hit the expected highspot.

McCrea, we feel, has been seriously miscast in "Reaching for the Sun," in which his undeniable charm and come-hither boyishness are blurred by an unappealing gawkiness. Miss Drew looks but doesn't act pretty, but this fault might be laid at the door of the scripwriter.

Nor is that excellent actor, Albert Dekker, happily cast. His factory bully wobbles as a character.

On the same bill the Met screen presents "Power Dive," first in a Richard Arlen-starring series based on aviation to be turned out by William Pine and William C. Thomas, ex-press agents and associate producers who have become Paramount's newest independent producing team. It is aimed at the public's absorption in national preparedness.

Chaplin Revival Packs Fine Arts

'Way back in 1918, press and public were hailing the Charlie Chaplin comedy shorts as landmarks of film making and Chaplin as a tradition, and prophesying that both would become increasingly important as the years marched on.

And here it is 23 years later, the Fine Arts Theater is reviving these shorts and the customers and the critics alike are finding them as convulsing and topflight as ever.

This greatest pantomimist of them all . . . of whom George Bernard Shaw said he is "the only genius developed in the films since they (always excepting present company) started," and Alexander Woollcott that "we shall not see his like again" . . . may be seen in six of his funniest shorts at the Fine Arts.

They are "The Cure," "The Count," "The Immigrant," "The Adventurer," "Easy Street" and "The Vagabond."

The prints for this Chaplin symposium have been freshly made from the original negatives, with a special musical score synchronized to the action. They have been arranged in album form and are accompanied by the briefest of sub-titles.

More than 50,000 Chaplin fans have jammed the 200-seat Fifth ave. movie-house during the past seven weeks of its Manhattan showing. Yesterday's Fine Arts capacity audiences were highly enthusiastic about the Chaplin comedy revival.

Benchley Short At South Station

Now featured on the South Station Theater screen bill are Robert Benchley's comedy short, "Waiting For Baby," a study on parenthood; "The Story of the Monroe Doctrine," "Eyes on Brazil" and "Capitol Highlights." Included in the two and a half hour program are the latest newsreels, a Popeye cartoon and a Leon Errol comedy.

LORETTA YOUNG ROUTS RACKETEERS TO WIN ACTING LAURELS IN WESTERNER

Suffrage Battle On Keith Screen

By PEGGY DOYLE

Observing her twist an opening-show audience around her little finger as easily as she did a Wyoming legislature on Keith Memorial screen yesterday, it is conceivable that the so freshly lovely Loretta Young could make the customers think black was white and vice versa.

To see and hear her Annie Morgan in "The Lady From Cheyenne," first of a series of Frank Lloyd's independently-produced features for Universal, it was the provocative schoolmarm's charm that made woman suffrage legal in Wyoming.

According to this semi-demi legend, this first state to grant women suffrage was ailing from political poison-ivy, its lush, rolling country overrun with every variety of crook. And but for that brash beauty under the prim-looking skimmer, things might have gone on their crooked way.

But Annie, one of those early live-alone-and-like-it girls, had staked out a homestead claim and it was the sole tract that stood in the way of gambling boss Edward Arnold's scheme to secure all river bottom lots in order to force exorbitant water rates on the community. So Arnold had her schoolhouse burned to the ground to "learn" her.

It was hardly the tack to take with Annie, who had plenty of iron in that pretty jaw. She up and fought him back, meanwhile giving a tabloid course in the fine art of lobbying.

Annie even wins the primrose path prettles to her standard to the consternation of some of the frontier assemblymen and railroads the woman's suffrage bill through in 48 hours.

Can you believe it? Well, that's where Miss Young comes in . . . she makes Annie's incredible rout of the racketeers plausible and entertaining. Robert Preston, who didn't like Annie's schoolmarmish fedora but falls in love with her, is Edward Arnold's handsome legal stooge. Arnold, he who laughs first, last and always, finally stops when he gets his comeuppance.

Circus Film Moves To Scollay, Modern

"Wagons Roll at Night," traveling wagon-show film now showing on the Scollay and Modern screens, is a far cry from the Boston Garden's handsome, streamlined circus. It features Humphrey Bogart, Sylvia Sidney, Eddie Albert, Joan Leslie and Sig Ruman. On the same program is "Las Vegas Nights."

BETTE DAVIS' newest hit, "The Great Lie," is delighting Fenway and Paramount audiences.

Ina Ray Hutton's Orchestra Better Than Ever at Boston

Ina Ray Hutton, her tresses now becomingly light brown with a blonde edging to her bangs and long-bob, struts her streamlined person and her all-male band on RKO-Boston stage through Sunday.

She is not giving so much time to costume changes and has more to give to her batoning hi-jinks and her vocal calisthenics. Which is all to the good of the customers, particularly when she is singing "The Man I Love," a number she does with featured members of the band.

Since its last apearance here, the Hutton outfit has improved immeasurably. It has enlarged its range, its arrangements are well written and the output singly and collectively is better than ever. The big number, "Angry," featuring Miss Hutton, vocalist Stuart Foster and the ensemble is one of its nicest offerings.

Don Rice, who bills himself a "fugitive from a nut-house," was second only to Orchestra Leader Hutton and her band. His Roosevelt and Willkie characterizations were well received.

Pulling lighted cigarettes and blooming tulips out of the air is the arresting feat of the male half of the Dancing Starrs. Together, the Starrs offer some very acceptable dancing.

The gutta-percha zanies, the Carr Brothers, registered a hit with the audience and Paul Russell's piano specialty, "Dark Eyes," was another audience appeaser.

Danny Cappi's tenor saxophone, a feature of the band's offering of "So What?" is another important adjunct of this effective organization.

On the screen, the RKO-Boston is showing "Scattergood Baines," a Guy Kibbee starring picture, and "The House of Mystery," with Judy Kelly and Keneth Kent. P. D.

Gala Midnight Bill at Howard

"Cairo Nights" burlesquers will hold forth at the midnight show at the Old Howard tonight, starting at 11:30. In the cast are Margie Hart, Hank Henry, "Boots" Burns, Lew Black, Marion Wakefield, Saul Fields Cleo Canfield, Lawrence and Carroll, Al Pharr, Mario and Gloria, Green and Lang, Johnny Cook, Billy and Ann St. George, Bob Alda, Wanda Hayes, and Lola and Marie Cole.

'Buck Privates' Next Tremont Hit

Universal's Abbott-Costello co-starring comedy of army life, "Buck Privates," moves to the top-spot on the Tremont screen bill on Sunday for a four-day run. In addition to the now celebrated comedy team, the picture features the Andrews Sisters of boogie-woogie fame.

50 EARL JOHNSON BOASTS ABOUT BROTHER'S TALENTS

EN ROUTE TO BOSTON, May 9—When Paul Glee Waner was being hailed as the season's batting "find" back in the tandem bike days of 1926, he used to say:

"Shucks, that's nothin,' You ought to see my brother hit. He's much better than I am."

EARL JOHNSON

The young Pirate outfielder kept boosting his brother so constantly that the club owners finally purchased Lloyd Waner, and Lloyd proceeded to hit .355, .335 and .353 in his first three years with the Bucs, getting 223 hits his first year, 221 the second and 234 the third.

It was incredible hitting for a kid, a 3-year record unparalleled in baseball. Together the pair became known as "Big Poison" and "Little Poison."

The Boston Red Sox may have their "Big Poison" and "Little Poison" yet, poison, that is, to opposing hitters.

They have a young left-handed pitcher yclept Earl Johnson who will sing the talents of his equally left-handed brother Chet at the slightest provocation.

Earl was whiling away his time on the train working out problems in geometry. He was tearing up paper after paper, saying:

"Gee, it's funny how a guy can forget things so quickly."

He was reviewing his schools days at Ballard High, Seattle, and his two college years at St. Mary's in Frisco.

His brother, he said, went to University of Washington.

"But they don't major in baseball there, so Chet didn't get much time from the big league scouts."

Earl's father is employed by the telephone company in Seattle, and played semi-pro ball for 20 years. Earl was saying how his father nearly lost his job from taking too many afternoons off to watch him pitch when he was in high school.

Stops Base Stealers Dead

"Loves baseball," said Earl.

"Talked to him on the phone from St. Louis the other night," Earl chuckled. "Gee, he was nervous as a kid. 'When you get in there and start pitching, keep cool,' he told me, and I don't believe I ever was so nervous in my life as he was when he was talking to me.

"But he did tell me about Chet. He's won three games for Bakersfield in that new California League and has allowed only two runs in 27 innings.

"He tried out with the San Francisco Seals this spring but it rained all during training, and he didn't get much chance to work. He's as big as I am (six footer) and twice as fast.

"Every winter, just before it's time to go to spring training, we work out for a couple of weeks. I show him everything I know, and he corrects whatever faults he can find in my delivery, and he can always find more faults with mine than I can with his.

"Can't understand why he isn't in Double-A ball at least. I've heard it said that I have a good motion to first base (best in the league). Well, you ought to see his. Nobody has ever stolen a base on him.

"He's smart," Earl went on, "and fast, and last year came up with a change of pace ball that's a dandy. He's only 23. You'll hear of him in a year or two.

"He's been unlucky so far, but I'll bet this will be his year. Gee, I'd like to have him with me at spring training next year. Bet he'd stick."

Worth Train Fare to Get Peek

Paul Waner wasn't bragging when he said his brother could hit back in 1926, and Earl Johnson isn't the type to brag either.

Might be worth Chet's train fare across the continent one day to get a peek at him.

The Sox could stand a "Me and Paul" combination which provided the Cards gas in the '34 pennant drive.

They have a Heber Hampton Newsome and a Lamar Newsome, a one-X Fox and a two-X Foxx, so a couple of Johnsons wouldn't be amiss.

A great baseball name—Johnson. If the Sox keep trying enough of them they might eventually bump into another Walter.

FOR THE RECORDS—Roger Peckinpaugh was quoted in a Cleveland paper as saying that Lou Boudreau was his shortstop nomination for his all-time, all-star nine. We asked the Cleveland manager about it, and here was his reply:

"Said no such thing. The incident occurred at a dinner to Connie Mack. He picked me as his all-time shortstop, and when it came my turn to speak I merely said I must have been pretty good if I could pick them up like Boudreau. All-time?" Peck shrugged, "Why this is the first year I've seen the kid. And a fellow doesn't pick all-time stars on a couple of weeks' play."

Terry Snub Ires Stengel

NEW YORK, May 9—War whoops filled the Polo Grounds today as a fighting Casey Stengel and his surging Braves sought out Bill Terry to resume an old feud and incidentally pick off three games and pass the Giants who now are in third place.

Casey set the pace for battle as he fumed over Terry's latest crack that the Braves "are there to be plunked every time they step out on the field."

Sailor Bill Posedel will see about that, Stengel decided, and ordered hatchets uncovered for the scalp of Harry Gumbert. Both have one win and no defeats to their credit so far.

If the Braves can make a clean sweep of the three-game series and take over third place with a game and a half margin, it will be the sweetest of revenge for Ole Case personally.

Not since 1934, when Stengel was managing the Daffiness Boys in Brooklyn, has he been so burned up at Terry.

That was the occasion for Memphis Bill's now famous crack, "are the Dodgers still in the league?" and Stengel's even sweeter revenge when his Dodgers knocked the Giants out of the running for the pennant in the closing days of the campaign.

Now, it seems, Terry has begun the old feud all over again. He was quoted in a New York paper as observing "anybody who didn't beat the Phillies or Braves had only themselves to blame. Those two clubs are there to be plucked every time they step out on the field."

Case burned like an incendiary bomb when he saw a clipping describing the interview.

"So Mr. Terry is sticking his neck out again," he roared. "Well, Smiling Will can get himself ready for a few sleepless nights because I'm going to show him some pitching I might have saved for other clubs if he had kept his mouth shut.

"Furthermore, I'd like to know what gives Terry the right to do such popping off. Look at the records of our two clubs against the Western division ending today. While we were taking four out of seven, the Giants were lucky to pick up two victories against five defeats and one tie."

There may be protests of a sort coming out of Philadelphia pretty soon if anybody can get a sounding and locate the Phillies who have been ripe for 15 pluckings to date.

4 College Crews In Childs Regatta

PRINCETON, N. J., May 9 (INS)—Varsity crews of Princeton, Columbia and Pennsylvania, with M. I. T. as an added starter, will race over the mile and three-quarters course on Lake Carnegie here tomorrow in the 36th annual running of the Childs Cup regatta.

Columbia, defending champion, will bring an undefeated crew and will be favored to repeat last year's performance. The Lions registered wins over Rutgers and Navy and finished up ahead of Yale and Penn in the Blackwell Cup regatta.

Princeton has chalked up victories over Rutgers, Navy and M. I. T. this season and finished second to Harvard in the Compton Cup race. M. I. T. has not yet finished out in front this year, while Penn has lost to Rutgers and Columbia and beaten Yale.

SOX HOME FOR 13 GAMES

By HERB FINNEGAN

Over-traveled and under-played, the Red Sox detrained at Huntington ave. station at 10:30 this morning, went to their respective hotels to hang out their wash, then brisk mid-day workout at Fenway Park.

The Sox are in a comfortable spot as they open a 13-game home stand with the Yankees here tomorrow. They have won 10 games, lost eight for the season, within striking distance of the top.

They come off a Western trip where they won three, lost four, but the encouraging angle is that they won their last two games behind nine-inning pitchers, Grove and Wagner.

They were frayed at the edges as they started West. They had been on the go since March 25, the day they broke camp at Sarasota. They were a tired group as they met Detroit. It was not surprising, therefore, that their pitching was poor at the start.

But the rain this week, which already has cost them three games, and today's open date, has given them more rest than they needed. Now they are craving competition.

COULD BE BETTER

They'll get it, plenty of it, from the Yankees. But they'll be ready. They have three nine-inning pitchers ready to go. They are, in order, Lefty Grove, Saturday; Earl Johnson, Sunday, and Charlie Wagner, Monday.

First, a short review of the Western trip:

DETROIT, April 29—Detroit 5, Boston 3. Grove hammered for five runs in three innings. Mickey Harris holding Tigers to three hits and no runs in other five. Williams gets first homer, also a double.

DETROIT, April 30—Detroit 12, Boston 8—Charlie Wagner hammered for five runs in first inning, Sox come back but——

DETROIT, May 1—Boston 15, Detroit 9—Earl Johnson makes first start and pitches until one man is out in ninth inning. Sox tee off on Bridges for five runs in first inning, reversing procedure of first two games. Creditable performance by Johnson, who mows down Gehringer and rest in pinches until he tires.

CLEVELAND, May 2—Cleveland 7, Boston 3—Indians, in midst of win streak, makes it eight straight. Dick Newsome chased in fourth. Nice relief trick by Oscar Judd, who, "reminds me, says Jack Graney, of Vern Greg," old Sox star.

CLEVELAND, May 3—Cleve-

YANKEES OPEN SOX HOMESTAY TOMORROW

land 4, Boston 2—Indians jump on Mike Ryba for four runs in first inning. Then Mike holds them hitless for next four. Third uphill fight lost by Sox because of bad first inning.

ST. LOUIS, May 4—Boston 11, St. Louis 4—Grove goes route. Sox get five runs in fourth. No contest thereafter.

CHICAGO, May 7—Boston 4, Chicago 3, 11 innings—Wagner pitches remarkable seven-hitter no two hits coming in same frame. Williams knocks in three of four runs, two with homers, his titanic 4-ply clout in 11th, lets Red Sox come home with a smile.

It could have been better. It might have been worse. Take out three bad first innings, and the Sox might be right up there with the Indians.

The pitching is straightening out. Williams' ankle is healed. Pete Fox will be ready to play right field in a day or two. Cronin's play, the big question mark at the opening of the season, has been answered, in the affirmative to date. His fielding on the western trip has been something to write home about, particularly that double play in St. Louis which he started with a back-hand stab of Lucadello's hard hit ball.

A word about Williams' hitting: In Detroit he had at least three home runs taken away when the wind held back his long drives. In Cleveland, where the right field fence is only 290 feet away, he didn't get hold of one, mainly because he was lifting his head like a golfer. It was just a mashie shot, and he was anxious to see his drives soar over the fence, result; no home runs. But he really was himself in Chicago. Ask John Dungan Rigney.

Here's how they hit: DiMaggio, 31 times at bat, 12 hits, the leader; Spence, five games, 19-6; Doerr, 33-8; Cronin, 23-7; Williams, 27-9; Tabor, 28-9; Foxx, 27-5 (fanned seven times); Pytlak, 27-9 . . . DiMaggio's right wrist was so sore this morning he might have had to remain on the sidelines if there was a game scheduled today . . . He's a game little tyke, sticking in there (the way he has been doing . . .

Wild Dodger Surge Blinding Flag Foes

The swashbuckling Brooklyn Dodgers have taken complete command of the National League and right now are hot enough to singe a sheet of asbestos, according to the Associated Press.

They have faced every other club in the circuit at Ebbets Field during their past 15 games and won 13 of them. They captured three out of four from the world champion Cincinnati Reds last week and now they have swept a two-game series from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The climax to this sensational stand came yesterday in the shape of a 5-4, 12-inning triumph over the Redbirds while a ladies' day crowd of 32,939 wavered between hysteria and boredom.

There was a lot of fireworks right at the start as teh Dodgers punched out a four-run lead in the first two frames and lost it in the next two.

TIGHT DUEL FOR 7 FRAMES

Then husky Mort Cooper and slender Kemp Wicker, Brooklyn relief worker, settled down to a dull, airtight pitching struggle for seven innings until, with two out in the 12th, Joe Medwick beat out a single to third-baseman Jim Brown and went to second as Brown overthrew first.

Then Cookie Lavagetto, who had doubled two runs across in the first, singled Medwick home.

The victory gave the Dodgers a game and a half margin in first place and exposed the Cardinals as a dangerous but disorganized array. St. Louis outfielders collided on two different fly balls and the infield proved porous.

The Dodgers moved to Philadelphia today and from there will six-hit hurling of Steve Sundra. Eastern clubs. The Dodgers were the best road team in the league last year, winning 47 and losing 23 away from home.

OLSEN PACES CUBS TOWIN

In the only other gameyesterday in the senior circuit Vera Olsen scattered 10 hi and smacked a 3-run homer a lead the Chicago Cubs to a 5-4 ecision over the Phillies. The ory run against him was a round-tripper by Danny Litwhiler in the eighth.

In the American League the New York Yankees took another cut out of the Cleveland Indians' lead with a 5-4 victory in a slugging session that included 13 hits for New York and 11 for the Tribe.

Big Red Ruffing hit a home run, a double and a single to bolster his pitching, and received credit for the victory, although Fireman John Murphy had to help out with 3 1-3 innings of shutout relief pitching.

This left the Indians 2½ games out in front of the Yanks, whom they will meet again in two games in New York next week when the western clubs invade the East.

SENATORS CRUSH TIGERS

The Washington Senators muzzled the Detroit Tigers, 7-1, with a 14-hit offensive to back up the six-hit hurling of Steve Sundra. Cecil Travis supplied a home run and a triple for the Senators. It was the fourth loss for Buck Newsom, who lasted only till the fourth inning.

Pete Suder hit a home run with two on in the eighth to provide the Philadelphia Athletics a 9 6 margin over the St. Louis Browns.

Bump Hadley, one-time Yankee who won a game in the National League for the New York Giants last month, made his first start since returning to the junior circuit and was credited with the victory, although relieved in the ninth. He served two home-run balls to George McQuinn.

CHANGE PARK LEAGUE PLAYOFFS SYSTEM

There will be but one change in the regulations and by-laws of the Boston Park League which swings into its 54-game twilight schedule with a quartet of tilts Monday night.

This revision will have no effect on the regularly scheduled games but will effect the play-off series.

In the championship series, four teams in each division qualify for the play-offs in that division. The first and fourth teams meet in a two-out-of-three series as do the second and third. Winners of these series, meet for the title in the division.

This two out of three series brought up the question of where the third game was to be played provided the games carried that far. In the past, a flip of a coin would decide the park for the odd-tilt.

This year, there will be no toss-up. The club compiling the best percentage will take the decision in its own hands, with an undisputable choice of the field.

Meanwhile, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin was reported to be holding secret workouts at Fenway Park during the absence of the Red Sox to get in trim for the opening game at the Dorchester Town Field.

The mayor is scheduled to pitch out the first ball for the Dick Casey Club-Artesani Club feature game. As much as the mayor would like to get his own Mayor Tobin Club off to a fine start in its opener at Fallon Field against the Roslindale T. C., he will participate in the pennant raising of the champion Dick Casey outfit.

In the other first night clashes the new Hurley club of Roxbury invades Lee Playground in South Boston to meet Carter's Clothes, while St. Catherine's of Charlestown will entertain the Hellenics of Roxbury at Barry Park in the Bunker Hill section.

The Linehan Club of South Boston and the Navy Yard A. A. of Charlestown will get their campaigns under way Tuesday.

Three Swimming Records Shattered

HONOLULU, T. H., May 9 (AP)—Adolph Kiefer of Chicago and 16-year-old Bill Smith, Jr., of Honolulu bettered three American swimming records here.

Kiefer, the backstroke specialist, churned through the Waikiki War Memorial natatorium for times of one minute, four-tenths of a second in the 100-yard and 1:35.6 in the 150 yards. The listed American records are 1:02 for the 100-yard event, set at Trenton, N. J., in 1938 by Albert Vandeweghe and 1:37.2 made by Kiefer in 1937 at San Francisco.

Young Smith raced over 400 meters free style in 4:41.1 compared to the listed American mark of 4:46 set at Chicago in 1937 by Ralph Flanagan.

B. A. A. First Ten Enters Revere Race

Les Pawson, three-time winner of the B. A. A. marathon, and the first nine to finish behind him in this year's Patriot's Day classic, will participate in the General Edwards Memorial 14-mile handicap road race in Revere and Lynn tomorrow afternoon.

Also will be found at the starting line Clarence De Mar, Bruno Mazzeo, three time winner of the event, and over 100 other marathon big names from many parts of the country.

Humbert Cirafice, manager of the event, received word that teams from Camp Edwards and Camp Devens also will run.

The race will start promptly at 3 o'clock from the Point of Pines side of the General Edwards Bridge and proceed to Lynn, West Lynn, back to Revere and Beachmont and finally back to the finish line.

TODAY A YEAR AGO—Pirates sent Johnny Gee, $75,000 rookie, to Syracuse on option because of sore pitching arm.

THREE YEARS AGO — Max Schmeling, arriving in New York, predicted he'd repeat K. O. of Joe Louis.

FIVE YEARS AGO—Ben Eastham won 880-yard run in 1:52.9 for San Francisco Olympic Club as clubmen bowed to Stanford U. Track Tex team, 71-61.

B. C. Track Team Favored to Whip H. C.

TRIPLE THREAT—Jumpin' Joe Zabilski, famous running guard of the Sugar Bowl champions, is the big gun of the Eagles' track team in their duel with Holy Cross tomorrow. He tosses the hammer, shot and javelin. Undefeated in the hammer event since entering B. C., he's a sure winner tomorrow and will pick up sure points in the other two events.

Coach Jack Ryder, of Boston College track forces, tomorrow afternoon will hustle his Eagles to Worcester's Fitton Field where they will tangle with ancient and honorable rival Holy Cross.

The meet was originally carded for May 14, next Wednesday, but with the upper classes of both colleges due to start gruelling final examinations on that day the athletic authorities of the colleges decided to advance the date of the annual clash.

Only the varsity will meet on the morrow. No date has been arranged for freshmen competition. A previous date with the Northeastern freshmen team prevents the Eagle yearling squad from making the trip to Worcester tomorrow. As things now stand the Boston College-Holy Cross frosh meet may be cancelled.

TIED LAST YEAR

Boston College will be favored to cop the gonfalon in a close contest. That doesn't mean that the Crusaders, who appear to have a definite edge in the track events but won't be so strong in the field event competition, have thrown in the towel—not by a long shot.

Boston College entered last year's meet a favorite but Holy Cross' power in the track events permitted it to go far out in front in the early part of the meet that only a rousing comeback in the weight events favored Boston College to pull out an unusual tie, 67½-67½.

GRIGAS SHOT FAVORITE

Jumpin' Joe Zabilski, the conscientious rock of granite who teamed with George Kerr to give Frank Leahy the best pair of guards the Notre Dame coach ever saw, is another big gun of the Eagle field event forces. Joe tosses the hammer, shot, and javelin. He is expected to cop first honors in the hammer event and points in the other events.

Big John Grigas, the 200-pound powerhouse sophomore fullback of last year's Crusader eleven, is expected to win the shot putting clash.

In the track events, Gil Walker, colored flash from Everett, Co-Captains Bill Dowd and Joe Shea, Johnny Ballantine, Ed McCarthy, Elmer Ross, Bill Harkins and Bill Riley will uphold the honor and glory of the Maroon and Gold. They'll have lots of competition from Charlie O'Donnell, Charlie Gillis and Bob McGlone.

Yacht Yankee On Last Voyage

QUINCY, Mass., May 9 (INS)—Bound for the junk heap to provide funds for the purchase of a Spitfire airplane for the RAF, the Boston class J. sloop Yankee, unsuccessful contender for America's cup honors, today leaves a Neponset yacht yard on her final voyage—on the 11th anniversary of her launching.

Gerard B. Lambert, rear commodore of the New York Yacht Club, owner of the sloop, ordered her on the 100-mile voyage from Neponset to a Fairhaven yard, where she is to be scrapped.

Proceeds of the sale, approximate $10,000 has been turned over to the Royal Thames Yacht Club for the purchase of the airplane. Lambert is an honorary member of the British Yacht Club.

N. E. STABLES PREPARED FOR LONG SUFFOLK MEETING

SUFFOLK DOWNS, the East Boston race track giant, has awakened after its long sleep and is twisting its huge buildings and racing surface as it prepares to sweep into action with a 60-day meeting that opens on Monday. The giant likes the soft Spring breezes and warm sunshine. They have helped dry the new paint and make the one-mile track lightning fast.

EARL PORTER

There was an air of activity about the place as I paid it my annual pre-season visit. From Charles F. Adams, president, down to the men who were sweeping up under the stands, everyone was active and cheerful.

There is something about the opening of a race track that makes one feel as if he is surrounded by life. Men are busy putting the last touches of paint to the stands and in polishing brass and copper.

Vans are bringing in new horses from other tracks or from farms where the thoroughbreds have Wintered. Other horses are arriving by train.

In the Racing Secretary's office the staff is busy checking on horses and getting entries for the opening day's events.

Back in the stable area the track kitchen is taking care of the food needed to feed the people working at the track and those sure to come later.

The hay and grain men are moving around among the horsemen.

Horsemen as well as the bettors always look forward to a new race meeting with a feeling of hope and confidence. They feel that Lady Luck will smile on them. They may change their opinions after the meeting has been on for two weeks, but for the time being at least they are happy.

New England stables at Suffolk Downs

WALKING THROUGH the barn area at Suffolk Downs I saw many horses owned by New England men. Johnny McDowell, trainer of the Bola Farm horses from Byfield, looked quite happy when he announced that he had directed the vanning of 11 horses to the East Boston track.

Two horses formerly owned by Samuel D. Riddle are included among the Bola Farm horses. They are the four-year-old gray gelding Blue Uniform, a son of Man O' War, and the Kanter three-year-old Going Along which has won two races during the present Narragansett meeting.

Other horses that will carry the Bola Farm colors at Suffolk Downs are Lady Ariel, Dawn Portage, Whisper, Hammerhead, Personable, Papa Jack, Zileanna and Bully Time.

McDowell is also training two horses for Nat Palumbo. They are Bit O' Green and Sun Fox. Bit O' Green is a three-year-old filly that was claimed at Rockingham Park last Fall for $1500. Bit O' Green was shipped to Florida for Winter racing and won three firsts and two seconds.

Kane horses to race in East Boston

BENJAMIN N. KANE of Providence will also have most of his thoroughbreds racing at the East Boston track. Included in the Kane string are Paul Scarlet, Sit Pat, Translady, Repeller, Belmar Era and Noble Boy. As soon as Narragansett Park closes, six more of the Kane horses will be shipped here, while others will come to Suffolk Downs from the Kane farm at Seekonk.

Eben Pons told me that the Rivermont Ranch has been assigned 26 stalls. Rivermont Branch horses now at Suffolk Downs are Big Mike, Desperate Dick, Honey Brand, Aunt Helen, Merry Mick, Moonfolly, Ira Clark and Wise Play.

Sheldon H. Fairbanks, who raced his horses in Florida during the Winter and then moved to Narragansett Park, will be represented by the fast stepping Range Dust, Neon Light and Myrne Lee. Earl Porter will train the Fairbanks horses. Earl rode for Fairbanks, and when he went in for training horses Sheldon turned over his table to him.

In addition to Fairbanks' horses, Porter will also have two of his own horses at the track. They are Hugood and Pyme.

Petline has arrived at Suffolk Downs from New York under the direction of Owen Cunningham. The latter also has brought Constitutional and the four-year-old filly, Career Girl, to the East Boston track.

STARTER BOB FREND may be found at Suffolk Downs each morning schooling horses. Joe Collins is acting as one of Bob's "right eyes" in getting the thoroughbreds properly drilled for Monday's opening.

President Adams and Bruce Wetmore, treasurer, predict the most successful racing season in the history of Massachusetts.

In the publicity department, Frank Ryan, Horace Wade and Walter Hapgood are grinding out releases for the press. They have plenty to write about for in addition to the ordinary run of horses who will fill the average type of races, Suffolk Downs has more important stake events than at any time since it was opened. The Yankee Handicap for three-year-olds and the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap have attracted the nominations of most of the leading handicap horses.

I'll be back at Suffolk Downs in time to try to come up with the winner of the first race. One always feels a little better when he is able to start a racing meeting with a winner.

Rain Slows Pimlico Race Strip; Longshot Kansas in Preakness

BALTIMORE, May 9 (AP)—Rain "gooed up" Pimlico's racing strip today for the second time in 36 hours as the entry box opened for filing of the hopefuls for tomorrow's 51st running of the $50,000 added Preakness Stakes.

The rain started shortly at dawn and had slowed the track considerably for the early morning workouts by the time the mile of the first horse was dropped into the entry box.

This was the rank outsider and surprise starter, Kansas, from the Millsdale Stable of Tony Pieri of New Orleans and Mel Esch of Chicago.

Two of the recognized speed horses of the field, Mrs. C. Phipp's King Cole and Dr. J. Kleberg, Jr.'s Dispose, were next in line.

The rain diminished to an annoying drizzle by the time entries were filed for Coldstream Stable's Curious Coin and Crispin Bay's Ocean Blue, a pair of who were kept home from the Kentucky Derby to direct their attention entirely to the Preakness.

Curious Coin ran second in the Flamingo at Hialeah last winter and the Wood Memorial at Jamaica two weeks ago.

Ocean Blue, a son of Blue Larkspur, won the Survivor Stakes here Tuesday.

Bill Whitley, agent for Warren Wright's Calumet Farm Stable, filed the entry of Whirlaway, the betting favorite and record-cracking Derby winner of last Saturday.

As he dropped the entry into the box, Trainer Ben Jones took the colt on the track for a final half-mile "blowing," clocking him in just under 51 seconds.

Eight horses were officially entered today in The Preakness. Here is the lineup:

Horse	Jockey	Owner	Prob. Odds
Whirlaway	Arcaro	W. Wright	1-1
Porter's Cap	Haas	C. S. Howard	4-1

Soose Favored To Lift Title From Overlin

Middleweight Champion Ken Overlin of Washington and Challenger Billy Soose of Farrell, Pa., square off tonight for their 15-round battle with the latter firmly entrenched as an 8 to 5 favorite to emerge as the new boss of the 160-pounders.

Both fighters admittedly are ready for a tussle expected to go the full distance. No odds were quoted on a knockout, as neither has too much punch.

A slight edge in the punching generally is credited to Soose, who also has youth in his favor, but the Overlin followers banked upon his smartness gained in a decade of campaigning.

In a previous meeting, Soose was given a widely disputed decision.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 9 (INS)—World's Champion Joe Louis arrived here expressing belief Buddy Baer will put up a fight when they meet in a 15-round title bout here May 23—and "That'll make everybody happy."

Baer's big and he hits good," said the "dead-pan" champ, without even the semblance of a grin. "Im glad he's next in line because I'm getting tired of fighting these men who always want to run away.

"There's two kinds of fighters in my book. There's fighters who want to make a reputation by stickin' around a few rounds with the champ, an' other fighters, like Jimmy Braddock, who play to win. I believe Buddy will go in there and fight back. That'll make everybody happy."

SUNDAY ADVERTISER

TWO-DAY TOURNAMENT OPENS AT FRAMINGHAM

By BILL GRIMES

After the shut out its Metropolitan four ball team took recently, the Framingham Country Club should be a perfect host during its two day four ball tournament, which got underway this morning . . . it's the first four ball event on the M. G. A. calender, and, weather permitting, should attract a large field . . . on the morrow, the Kittansett Golf Club at Marion, which is one of the finest layouts in the country, will begin a two day four ball invitation . . . Kittansett has completely recovered from the effects of the hurricane, which all but erased six or seven holes . . . It looks like Trapelo is coming back into its own in the Metropolitan Four Ball League . . . Capt. Joe Looney has an exceptionally strong team under his wing and unless the other contenders unearth better talent than they have displayed up to the present the title is well on its way back to the House of the Kendall Green Duffys.

Under the watchful eye of Pres. Harold W. Pierce of the U. S. G. A., The Country Club is being groomed for the Big 8 invitation, which will be held at Clyde Park on Wednesday next. Although he fully realizes that the Big 8 is liable to do a job on par at The Country Club, President Pierce will not "hide" the cups . . . if Fred Wright makes a bid to annex his eighth state amateur title, he'll make some of the youngsters step at their prettiest . . . incidentally, the Longmeadow A. C., where the state amateur will be staged, will offer a fine test of golf, for, in every way, shape and manner it is a championship course. . .

Rumor has it that the Myopia Hunt Club may go by the boards. The membership has dropped to a corporal's guard and little attempt is being made to keep the course up . . . the soldier boy golfers at Camp Edwards are loud in their praises of Al Grauer, the pro at Coonamessett G. C. where they get in their practice rounds and where the 11 play most of their matches . . . however, if "Abe" Mitchell is playing No. 3 on the team, Camp Edwards can be taken on the links . . . Coach Tommy Keane expects his Dartmouth team to register favorably today and tomorrow at Providence during the second round of the Eastern Intercollegiates.

Did you ever hear of a player laying an opponent two stymies on ONE green? Well, it happened yesterday on the 18th green at The Country Club, Mrs. Donald K. McClusky was the victim and Mrs. J. W. Goodrich the perpetrator. And moreover, it meant the match . . . But for the fact that while attempting to jump a stymie, Mrs. W. N. Austin knocked Miss Deborah Verry's ball into the cup yesterday, their match would have gone extra holes. The state titlist, aided and abetted by that break chalked up a 1 up victory . . . Miss Francis Stebbins, who is the Bay State's member of the Women's committee of the U. S. G. A. returned to competitive golf and scored a 2 up victory over Mrs. William J. Porell of Haverhill.

Dartmouth Track Team Set to Shake Cambridge Jinx

The annual Harvard-Dartmouth track meet at the Stadium tomorrow afternoon tops a big day for Harvard athletes with the Indians favored.

Victory for the Big Green would be their first at Cambridge since 1911 and the third since the start of the series in 1906.

Dartmouth, which trimmed the Crimson, 66-42, at Hanover in February, should win handily with a veteran array of ten-point winners from last year's dual meet, including five first place winners. Harvard is in a year of rebuilding, with a team composed mostly of sophomores

Preliminary dope sheets give the Cantabs 85 points to 80 for the Hanover team.

Doug Pirnie, Harvard's soph sprint star, is the only local entry conceded a chance to win any of the running events, while Capt. Don Donahue should take both the hurdles.

The field events should offer some close competition with the Crimson favored in the hammer throw, discus and shotput, and the invaders in the high and broad jump, the pole vault and the javelin

Most Real Fans Burn Over Loss of Players

NEW YORK, May 9 (The Special News Service)—Those two hits Joe DiMaggio got yesterday barely pulled him up over .300, after he'd been under that figure for the first time since he joined the Yanks.

If Whirlaway wins the Preakness tomorrow, tsey'll rest him up until the Belmont Stakes next month . . . The television people will pipe tonight's Overlin-Soose fight to a nearby theater and as an aid thereto the Garden will use a brown canbas instead of the traditional white covering.

Boy Breaks Leg Sliding Home To Win Game

WARRIOR, Ala., May 9 (AP)—J. C. Cochrane won a game for Warrior High School yesterday and then went to a hospital with a broken leg.

First, he scored to knot the count with St. Bernard High at 1-1.

Then in the sixth he walked, stole second and headed for home on a passed ball. He broke his leg as he slid into home plate for the winning run.

Southworth Well Fixed For Pitchers

HOUSTON, Tex., May 9 (AP)—Manager Bill Southworth of the rampaging St. Louis Cardinals is having trouble turning loose players—especially pitchers—in order to meet the National League limit.

He has so many sensational rookie twirlers—including several from Houston—he's talking to himself.

Well, Billy doesn't know the half of it.

If the Cardinals wanted to reach down to their farm club here they could bring up another flock of youngsters who are sending the Buffs along at a merry clip on top of the Texas League.

CARDS WELL HEELED

For instance, Freddie Martin, Howard Pollet and Ted Wilks, have each won four straight. John Pintar has won three, while losing one.

Houston has more than three times as many victories as defeats. Critics wouldn't be surprised if the Buffs topped the loop all the way for the second straight year. The club is young, but more mature than last year's.

Martin, 25-year-old newcomer, has been called in the draft, but is expected to get a 60-day deferment. Otherwise the Big Four has been untouched.

Pollet, valued by President Fred Ankerman at $51,000, tied the league record for shutouts with three straight this season. The 19-year-old southpaw already held the consecutive game winning record, set last year at 13. This year he already has one no-hit, no-run game to his credit.

WILKS WON 13 GAMES

Wilks, 25, worked in 47 games last season, winning 13 and losing 10 for the Buffs. Pollet toiled in 32, hanging up 20 victories and losing seven. Pintar, 26, with second-division Dallas, worked in 32, winning 11 and losing nine. Martin wasn't in the Texas League in 1940.

All four may be with the Cardinals next season, giving Southworth another headache when pruning time comes.

Coach Harlow Well Pleased With Eleven

Harvard will have a good football team next year—if Franny Lee and Charley Spreyer are available, Dick Harlow said at the Harvard Varsity Club luncheon.

The bald Crimson mentor fent over the prospects of the team next year and like a Cheshire cat, he was optimistic until he thought about the chances that the two best Harvard backs might be in the Army.

It seems fairly certain now that Spreyer will be back in college as a result of his provisional acceptance in the Marine Reserve. Franny Lee, who has a low draft number in hostile New Haven, may have to bow to the orders of the Army.

Harlow praised Lee by saying, "Lee ranks as about the best safety man I have ever coached." That covers a lot of territory. Harvard ended the season last year with the best pass defense record in the country and Lee was the key man in the defense.

Coach Harlow stated that he was pleased with the results of spring football which has just concluded and that the Cantabs would have a stalwart line next year with the duo of Chub Peabody and Loren MacKinney as the two kingpins.

Harlow thinks the Cantabs will offer some tough competition. They better be ready because they open the season with Penn and on the next two week-ends they tangle with Navy and Cornell.

Quotes from other Harvard coaches: Tom Bolles, crew coach, "I think that the crew this year is about the same as last season." Jakko Mikkola, track coach, "We have a hard working group. We are rebuilding this year. Floyd Stahl, baseball tutor paid special praise for the outstanding work of Capt. Freddie Keyes of Boston.

Take Stitch in Neck Of Pete Reiser

NEW YORK, May 9 (INS)—Pete Reiser, Brooklyn Dodgers' sensational rookie center fielder, who was injured in the second inning of yesterday's game with the St. Louis Cardinals when he crashed into the corrugated iron door in centerfield after a circus catch of Enos Slaughter's 400-foot wallop, will be out of the lineup for at least two days, Dr. D. A. McAteer, club physician, said today.

One stitch was required to sew up a two-inch cut in the back.

Peggy Tourney At Common

The annual "Peggy" championships of the City of Boston will be held on Boston Common Mall tomorrow morning at 10:30 a. m.

This event will be held under the auspices of the park dept. and the WPA division of recreation.

Twenty-four boys, the finalists in elimination contests held on Boston's playgrounds during the past two months in which over 500 boys participated, will compete for the championship.

"Bill" Mullen will be in charge of the event and will present medals to the winners.

Mrs. Snowden, 70, Still Playing Tournament Golf

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 9 (AP)—She'll be 70 years old Saturday, but Mrs. R. Brinkley Snowden of Memphis is still playing tournament golf.

She meets Mrs. Barney Ireland of Birmingham, Ala., today in the fourth flight consolation finals of the southern women's golf meet. Mrs. Snowden played in the first southern tournament here in 1915.

Two Huskie Stars on Huskie Student Board

Dean William of Somerville, captain of football, and Ed Parker of Arlington, cross country star, are included in the 16 new members of the Student Council at Northeastern University. Election results were announced this morning by Harold W. Melvin, Dean of Students.

Simon Nathenson of Roxbury, editor-in-chief of the under-graduate weekly paper which recently was accorded All-America honors, also is included.

Giants in Market For Fiddler McGee

NEW YORK, May 9 (INS)—The New York Giants, short on hurlers in both quantity and quality, today were reported dickering with the St. Louis Cards over the possible purchase of Fiddler Bill McGee, veteran righthander, or Clyde Shoun, left-hander.

BACKSTRETCH BREVITIES

By The Associated Press

The toboggan handicap, which will headline the inaugural program when New York racing shifts from Jamaica to Belmont Park next Monday, received somewhat of a setback today when Anthony Pelleteri announced Bay View was a doubtful starter in the race.

Bay View was the surprise winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, and then was beaten by Mioland in the San Juan Capistrano. He suffered a foot injury in that event and trainer Pat Dwyer had to take him temporarily out of training.

Only recently, in a workout at Belmont, he appeared to be regaining his form. But apparently the recovery hasn't been entirely satisfactory.

Eddie Arcaro will leave New York tonight for Baltimore to ride Warren Wright's Whirlaway in the Preakness. The veteran Italian jockey booted home two more winners at Jamaica yesterday, one of them W. C. Winfrey's Dini in the featured Dollie Dollars Cap. The five-year-old mare, more consistent than most of her sex, led from end to end to beat Maemere Farm's Maemante a length and a half in the mud in 1:12 4-5.

In addition to the $10,000 added Grey Lag, Jamaica will have a secondary feature for getaway day tomorrow in the Youthful Stakes, a five-furlong, two-year-old test. Lodigiani Hates to Hit Home Runs

CHICAGO, May 9 (AP)—Meet the major leaguer who hates to hit home runs—Dario Lodigiani, Chicago White Sox third baseman.

"I'm hitting this year," says the youngster acquired in a trade with Philadelphia's A's, "because I have persuaded myself to give up the idea of slugging. I hope I never hit another homer."

And since the American League race opened, he hasn't.

But he did bust out Bob Kennedy for the regular third base job and now holds down the No. 5 spot in the batting order, sports a .296 batting average and it tied with Joe Kuhel for the most Sox runs batted in, 12. Of his 23 hits in 19 games, six were doubles, one a triple.

As for homers?

"Not another as long as I play baseball," he declared.

Dario, now going on 24 and carrying 160 pounds on his 5-foot 8-inch frame, came to the A's reputed to be a power hitter, had three trials and then was obtained by the Sox, where he finally hit on a way "to make good."

It was that simple, ever so old, but still so very sound method.

"I'm just meeting the ball," he says.

May Play May 24

Northeastern's varsity baseball game with Tufts was postponed yesterday because of wet grounds. Efforts are being made to arrange a double-header for Saturday, May 24, when the teams are slated to play at Medford.
